Oleomargine Case Has Been Dismissed.

Jury Was Out Until 12:30 O'clock Last Night When It Returned

A Verdict In Favor of Kratz

Professor Hobbs, of Western Reserve University Gave Some Expert Testimony.

Artificial Coloring Used In Butter.

The hearing in the oleomargarine case against Harry Kratz was concluded last evening. The suit was brought in the court of Justice McLane, and the testimony was all in about 4:25.

Attorneys Steele and Fawcett stated the case plainly to the jury, after which Martin Cohen, the prosecuting witness, and Prof. Hobbs, the chemical expert of the Western Reserve Medical Institute, were sworn for the state and were examined by Judge Fawcett.

Cohen was called and stated that he was an inspector in the employ of the State Dairy and Food Commissioner. He said:

"On December 10 I bought one pound of oleomargarine from Harry Kratz. On this occasion I said, 'Do you remember me,' and Kratz said that he did."

This ended the direct testimony of the witness and Attorney Steele took him.

He brought out the fact that Cohen had visited Oppelt's store some time in July of last year and attempted to purchase some oleomargarine, but Kratz told him they were not selling oleomargarine that day, and Cohen asked him if they were giving it away, to which the clerk replied that they were.

Cohen then asked for 50 pounds of the stuff and it was delivered to him.

Fawcett objected to the reference to this visit in July, but Steele insisted that he wanted to show how Kratz came to know Cohen as a state official. The squire overruled the objection, and in answer to a question of Attorney Steele the witness said he had asked for 50 pounds in order to "stall" the clerk, as he didn't think he would give it to him.

Steele asked the witness why he did not return all but a pound of the oleomargarine after the clerk had given him 50 pounds and he replied that it was a matter of pride with him. He said he had considerable difficulty in carrying the oleomargarine away with him and shortly after he left the store he met Willis Nichols, an old acquaintance of his, and gave the stuff to him, and at the present time he did not know where it was.

He also said that he had never stated that he had it in for the merchants of this city.

Fawcett objected to the question, stating that it was not competent, but Steele stated that he proposed to impeach the witness by proving by Frank Kinsvatter and Frank Rayl that witness had made such a remark in their presence.

The question was allowed and defendant's attorney noted an exception.

The witness further testified that the sample purchased at Oppelt's on December 10 was taken to Cleveland and delivered into the hands of Prof.

Hobbs on December 12. He said he had labelled the package in the presence of the employees of the grocery with the label provided by the state for that purpose, pasting it over the string with which the package was tied.

The package alleged to have been bought at Oppelt's was here produced and showed that the string was on top of the label.

Steele then asked the witness if it was not customary for inspectors to seal in a glass jar in the presence of defendant before sending same to the chemist.

Witness replied that to the best of his knowledge it was not done. In reply to a question as to why he did not send the 50 pounds secured in July to the chemist, Cohen stated that he had consulted a local attorney who told him he had no case, and his pride would not permit him to return the stuff to its owner.

Attorney Fawcett asked witness if any change had been made in the package after he had got it and he stated that he had delivered it to Prof. Hobbs just as he had prepared it at Oppelt's store.

Steele then asked him if he was not employed by Dairy and Food Commissioner Blackburn as an inspector, and he replied that he was. He said he had no commission, no term of office and nothing to show that he was an employe of the state of Ohio and could be dismissed by Commissioner Blackburn at any time.

This closed Cohen's testimony and Prof. Hobbs was called and examined by Attorney Fawcett.

He said he was a chemist at the Western Reserve Medical University and also chemist for the State Dairy and Food Department, which position he had held for many years. He said he had made numerous examinations of oleomargarine. He identified the package upon the table as that brought to him by Inspector Cohen on December 12, the label was identical, and had no reason to think that it was not the same package. He said his analysis of the package showed that it contained 11 2-10 per cent of butter fats, together with a yellow coloring matter foreign to the usual methods in the manufacture of oleomargarine. He said the oleomargarine package given him contained 20 per cent of oleo oil, 25 per cent neutral oil, 20 per cent cream, 15 per cent milk, 10 per cent solid, 10 per cent salt and water.

The witness here launched into a detailed expert analysis of oleomargarine and butters in general. He consumed 45 minutes in his expert testimony.

The witness then stated that he could tell by the amount of butyric acid in the butter fats, after the salt, crud and water had been eliminated, that it did not contain a sufficient amount of pure butter fat to be up to the standard.

Attorney Fawcett asked what per cent of pure butter should be in a pound, to which witness replied 80 per cent, and that the sample had contained but 11 1-10 per cent. Witness then stated that the coloring had been put in to make it resemble pure butter sold in the market. He stated that most butter is colored, as the original color of the food is almost pure white, so is oleomargarine.

Steele then took the witness and made him repeat the statement that most of the butter sold on the market was colored by artificial means just the same as oleomargarine.

The state rested their case and an adjournment of five minutes was taken and after court had reconvened Harry Kratz was called for the defense and examined by Attorney Steele.

He testified that he was born in 1881 and was employed by Edwin Oppelt as a grocery clerk. He said he knew the prosecuting witness by having seen him in the store and knew that he was an inspector, as Cohen had told him. On December 10, as near as he could recollect, he sold Cohen a pound of oleo for analysis. He met Cohen on an occasion, he thought in July, on which occasion Cohen told him he was an inspector. Attorney Steele here asked the witness if in the presence of he and two other clerks Cohen had not stated that he had it in for the merchants of East Liverpool. The attorney for the prosecution objected to the question, stating that the question was irrelevant, that the prosecution was there to prove that a violation of the law had taken place, and the fact that whether Cohen had it in for them had nothing to do with the case.

The court sustained the objection, and as this would prevent both Rayl and Kinsvatter from testifying, the defense rested.

Attorney Steele asked that the wrapper around the oleomargarine bought at Oppelt's store be submitted. He gave as his reason for this that it contained the label placed there by the inspector and also the result of the analysis. This was agreed to by the state, and the testimony ended.

There was some discussion in regard to the arguments, as Judge Fawcett desired to return to Canton last night. He stated that he would be willing to limit the arguments on each side to half an hour. Steele objected, as he said they desired to present their case fully to the jury.

The court ruled that the case should take its regular course, and the arguments were proceeded with.

At 5:30 an adjournment was taken for supper and reconvened at 7 o'clock, at which time the arguments were completed and the case went to the jury shortly before 9 o'clock.

The jury was out until 12:30, when it returned a verdict in favor of Kratz, acquitting him of the charge.

When the first ballot was taken there were four for conviction and after a few more ballots one party voted for acquittal, but the remaining three voted for conviction until the last ballot was taken.

ONE POOR COMMON DRUNK ARRESTED

McDade Filled Up On Bad Whisky and Then Tried to Get In

S. J. FAULK'S RESIDENCE

He Was Ordered to Leave but Could Not See It That Way.

WAS ASSESSED $2 AND COSTS

Last evening a drunken man appeared at the home of S. J. Faulk, at the foot of Washington street, and insisted that he be left in the house. Mr. Faulk went to the door and the stranger tried to shove past him, but was foiled in his attempt. He was told to leave, but failed to do so and kept pounding on the door, much to the annoyance of Mr. Faulk.

He was repeatedly warned to leave, but failed to do so and the police were sent for. Officers Davidson and Dawson responded and the man was taken to the city jail.

He gave his name as J. V. McDade and this morning when he faced the mayor he pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was fined $2 and costs. He is now in jail waiting for friends to appear and pay his fine.

A BOX OF ORANGES.

Councilman Peach Sent a Very Delicious Lot of Fruit to President Marshall.

When Councilman George Peach went south a few days ago he promised to send President Marshall a box of oranges.

Yesterday they arrived in a box about three inches square and contained two dozen very small delicious specimens, which were distributed among the various councilmen and city officials.

RESIDENTS

Of the County Will Ask That the 50-Year Franchise Be Granted.

The promoters of the proposed East Liverpool and Salem Electric railway have petitioned the county commissioners for a 50-year franchise, and it is probable the residents in all parts of the county will ask that the franchise be granted, as they realize that the cost of building the road would be too great to have the capitalists accept a 25-year franchise.

A FIELD DAY.

The High School Athletic Association Will Hold One at the End of the Term.

The East Liverpool Athletic association met last evening and wound up their business for the year. The following officers were then elected: Manager—William B. Louthan. Treasurer—William Cripps. At the end of the school term a field day will be held.

A Salem Bankrupt.

Job Evans, a Salem coal dealer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court. The assets are $2,000, while the liabilities are $3,000.

ONE POOR COMMON DRUNK ARRESTED

McDade Filled Up On Bad Whisky and Then Tried to Get In

S. J. FAULK'S RESIDENCE

He Was Ordered to Leave but Could Not See It That Way.

WAS ASSESSED $2 AND COSTS

Last evening a drunken man appeared at the home of S. J. Faulk, at the foot of Washington street, and insisted that he be left in the house. Mr. Faulk went to the door and the stranger tried to shove past him, but was foiled in his attempt. He was told to leave, but failed to do so and kept pounding on the door, much to the annoyance of Mr. Faulk.

He was repeatedly warned to leave, but failed to do so and the police were sent for. Officers Davidson and Dawson responded and the man was taken to the city jail.

He gave his name as J. V. McDade and this morning when he faced the mayor he pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was fined $2 and costs. He is now in jail waiting for friends to appear and pay his fine.

Councilman Peach Sent a Very Delicious Lot of Fruit to President Marshall.

When Councilman George Peach went south a few days ago he promised to send President Marshall a box of oranges.

Yesterday they arrived in a box about three inches square and contained two dozen very small delicious specimens, which were distributed among the various councilmen and city officials.

RESIDENTS

Of the County Will Ask That the 50-Year Franchise Be Granted.

The promoters of the proposed East Liverpool and Salem Electric railway have petitioned the county commissioners for a 50-year franchise, and it is probable the residents in all parts of the county will ask that the franchise be granted, as they realize that the cost of building the road would be too great to have the capitalists accept a 25-year franchise.

The Kind of Husband I Should Choose For My Daughter.

Copyright, 1901, The Christian Herald.

A Christian Every Day in the Year.
By Mrs. Francis E. Clark.

Is it not a difficult question to ask of one who is spending the greater part of her time in training up future husbands for other people's daughters?

As a preliminary step I sent word to half a dozen college girls of my acquaintance, to know what kinds of husbands they would choose, and with one voice they assured me that they did not want any husbands. That put a summary stop to my investigations in that direction, and quite took my breath away. But I do not believe a word of it. I next appealed to my own mother to see what kind of a husband she would have chosen for me.

"My sister," she said, "was once asked, 'If you were required to choose between a Christian man with a quick, bad temper, and a man who made no pretensions of religion, but who was equal in intelligence, position and culture to the other, and whose disposition was known to be amiable, which would you choose? Not a fair question you say. So thought my sister; but when pressed for answer she replied: 'I would marry neither of them unless I loved him beyond everybody else in the world. In that case I think I should want to help the Christian to overcome his hot temper. If I were to choose the pleasant, winsome, irreligious man, I should, by violating my own religious convictions and training, show him so inconsistent a Christian character myself, that I could hardly hope to draw him to my Savior, and I should very likely lose my own warmth and zeal in Christian duty.' Shall I decide then that, first of all, my daughter's choice should be, or mine for her, a truly Christian man, one whose life and talents and property, if he has any, are consecrated to his Master. He must not be morose or quick-tempered, or selfish. He must be well educated, warm-hearted, sympathetic and amiable. He should honor his Master by a cheerful face."

Certainly then the man I would choose for my daughter (if I were so fortunate as to have a daughter) must first of all be a Christian, and he must not be one of the kind of whom a little boy said, "Yes, he is a Christian, but he is not working at it much." Nor must he be like that woman to whom her little daughter said, "Mamma, I found your religion in your trunk," meaning her church letter. The man I would choose must be an earnest Christian, the kind of a man who would be "working at it," and the kind of a man who would not "keep his religion in his trunk." If he moved to another town he would be the kind of a man who would be likely to take a letter to that church, and for the time he lived there, would throw in his lot with that church, and help to carry its burdens. If he traveled, he would carry his religion with him.

Shall he be rich? No, I think I would rather not. I think I would choose to have him acquire the strength that comes from "enduring hardness," rather than meet the temptations that come with riches. Shall he then be poor? No, I do not think I choose that, for I want them to have at least one luxury, the luxury of giving, and it is so little that a very poor man can give, even if he gives a tenth. I think I would pray Agur's prayer for him: "Give him neither poverty nor riches."

Shall he be handsome? Why yes, if I can choose he shall be "of a beautiful countenance and goodly to look to," and tall; but remember that does not come first. I have chosen first of all that he shall be an earnest Christian, and if he is that, the good looks will not hurt him, and he will certainly be more pleasing, and will have so much more power to influence others.

What shall his business be? Well, if I were to choose it for him, I think I would rather he would be a missionary or a minister, that his whole life might be spent in helping other lives, like the parson in Jean Ingelow's poem, "so anxious not to go to heaven alone." But since he is to be an earnest Christian man, I think I would rather he would choose his own calling, feeling that he would help other lives whatever his daily work may be.

Should Respect His Wife's Mother.
By Marietta Holley (Aunt Samantha.)
It seems to me that the first quality a mother would desire in the man who was to marry her daughter is goodness; since wealth takes wings and knowledge casts a rather cold light on the hearthstone when shining there alone. But the man who will be good to his wife in sunshine and shade, in youth and age, is the one likeliest to make her happy.

She would demand good habits in the one who vowed to comfort and protect her daughter, lest the protector should change into a danger, the comforter into a disgrace. She would like to have him a man who would sometimes give a kindly thought to the woman who toiled early and late to make the sweet wife he loves and admires what she is. And who patiently stepped down and out of the heart and life where she had reigned supreme, leaving him first and dearest. And she would greatly prefer that he should refrain from making the mother-in-law joke. But if she be a sensible woman she will not insist upon this, but quietly efface herself as much as possible, remembering that this has been the mother's lot since first the sons of God looked upon the daughters of men and saw that they were exceedingly and wonderfully fair.

And if she can bring herself to love the intruder, as so many have, and receive a loyal affection in return, why so much the better, the inevitable then becomes endurable. He should have courage, for there will be many lions to pass on the wedded journey and he will be weighted down by the burden of love, the care of one dearer to himself, for this the mother imperatively demands that he must love her daughter, she must be to him the one woman in the world, for love's torch is the brightest light upon earth to light the wedded pair.

He must have patience in abundance, as he will marry a woman and not a saint. And, above all, he should be a Christian, so he will know where to get help and comfort and joy, and discern through the deepest shadows the great light that gilds his road, and can help her onward and upward.

He should be industrious, and have enough of this world's goods to ensure his wife's comfort and prevent her hearing the baying of the wolf at her door, but not rich necessarily, as the woman who marries for riches alone confronts the dire possibility of the riches flying away and nothing but the man remaining when all that made him attractive and worthy of affection is gone.

He should be passably good looking, since it would be pleasanter to look across the coffee urn three hundred mornings in the year and behold a comely visage. He must have good sense, but not be too brilliant, as a meteor would not give as good satisfaction for household needs as a more mellow and steadier light.

Polite, Patient, Confident and Loving.
By Margaret E. Sangster.

If I had a daughter in the sweet bloom of her years, when a husband might loom up on the horizon, far would it be from me to choose for her in a matter of such personal importance. Yet I might give advice, and I hope I would do it tactfully, for much pre-matrimonial counsel defeats its own ends, confirms hesitation, and absolutely sends girls and men the opposite way from which the counsellor warned them.

Only on a solid foundation of true love and real respect can she or can he hope to build an edifice which will last. They must choose for themselves.

I would like to see my daughter marry a man whose mother had early trained him in unselfishness at home. I would prefer a man who had as a boy lived with sisters, two older, and three younger perhaps, and waited on them all, and who had been their escort, companion and friend.

The most charming man in the whole world is the man who appreciates a woman's need of small courtesies, who never in any circumstances finds fault or interferes in what is beyond his province, who keeps to his own side of the line in home management, and does not prowl around where he is not wanted. A polite, considerate, patient gentleman makes an ideal everyday sort of a husband.

If my daughter is wise she will not pin her faith to a man who has no reverence for God, nor belief in the Heavenly Father. A man who has no definite religious principles, no convictions, who is disposed to ignore the claims of the church and of the Savior, may be otherwise amiable, but he will not have ballast enough for the crisis of life. A profane or intemperate man should be avoided by the girl who is asked to put herself in the keeping of another. A man should be of knightly purity and stainless honor when he seeks the hand of pure maiden.

PAYS ITS RESPECTS

TO PARTIES WHO ONCE RESIDED IN THIS CITY.

The Roller Monthly, of Canton, Makes a Few Uncomplimentary Remarks.

The Roller Monthly, a magazine of Canton, pays its respects to some parties who used to reside here in the following uncomplimentary manner:

In a recent number of "Newspaperdom," a writer from this city, whose signature testifies that he is connected with the business management of the News-Democrat, stated that Canton was in sore need of a writer of advertisements for local business men, and advised some experienced young man to locate here and establish himself in that business. This writer, like the majority of the force of that paper, is himself an importation, and, with the others, ridicules and sneers at local journalism, and is making an attempt to show the old residents "how to run a city newspaper." He prefers to have a stranger locate here and secure work, rather than it should be given to a Cantonian. There are a number of bright young men connected with the newspapers and printing offices in this city who have the ability to become satisfactory "ad. writers," if there was a demand for their services, and, in fact, several of the leading business houses of the city do now employ an expert to write their advertising matter for them. The truth of the matter is that the majority of Canton merchants think that money paid for the writing of an ad. is money as good as wasted.

Another truth is that to produce good advertising matter for a diversity of businesses, would occasion considerable study by the writer as well as expense in procuring proper books, magazines and papers relative thereto. Some advertising matter may be written off-hand in a few moments, while others may take hours if not days to produce. How many advertisers in a city like Canton would pay the ad. writer $3 for an ad. that took him half a day to produce; or $1 for one that took an hour or more of his time? Some years ago, the writer issued a circular to the business men of Canton and vicinity, offering his services to assist in writing their advertising matter, and to supply them with clippings of ads, etc., from out-of-papers, in their especial line of business, etc., etc. He spent several dollars for postage stamps and mailed the circulars in sealed envelopes to the most prominent advertisers and business men in Canton and elsewhere. He states another truth when he says that long, long since, he ceased looking for his first reply to that circular letter. Most of the Canton advertisements of today are reproduced (excepting the firm name, prices, etc.) from such journals, as the Advertising World, Printers' Ink, the Adv. Writer, etc. No, I don't believe I would advise any one to take the News-Democrat man's advice and try to make a living in this city by the means of "ad. writing."

That put a summary stop to my investigations in that direction, and quite took my breath away. But I do not believe a word of it. I next appealed to my own mother to see what kind of a husband she would have chosen for me.

"My sister," she said, "was once asked, 'If you were required to choose between a Christian man with a quick, bad temper, and a man who made no pretensions of religion, but who was equal in intelligence, position and culture to the other, and whose disposition was known to be amiable, which would you choose? Not a fair question you say. So thought my sister; but when pressed for answer she replied: 'I would marry neither of them unless I loved him beyond everybody else in the world. In that case I think I should want to help the Christian to overcome his hot temper. If I were to choose the pleasant, winsome, irreligious man, I should, by violating my own religious convictions and training, show him so inconsistent a Christian character myself, that I could hardly hope to draw him to my Savior, and I should very likely lose my own warmth and zeal in Christian duty.' Shall I decide then that, first of all, my daughter's choice should be, or mine for her, a truly Christian man, one whose life and talents and property, if he has any, are consecrated to his Master. He must not be morose or quick-tempered, or selfish. He must be well educated, warm-hearted, sympathetic and amiable. He should honor his Master by a cheerful face."

Certainly then the man I would choose for my daughter (if I were so fortunate as to have a daughter) must first of all be a Christian, and he must not be one of the kind of whom a little boy said, "Yes, he is a Christian, but he is not working at it much." Nor must he be like that woman to whom her little daughter said, "Mamma, I found your religion in your trunk," meaning her church letter. The man I would choose must be an earnest Christian, the kind of a man who would be "working at it," and the kind of a man who would not "keep his religion in his trunk." If he moved to another town he would be the kind of a man who would be likely to take a letter to that church, and for the time he lived there, would throw in his lot with that church, and help to carry its burdens. If he traveled, he would carry his religion with him.

Shall he be rich? No, I think I would rather not. I think I would choose to have him acquire the strength that comes from "enduring hardness," rather than meet the temptations that come with riches. Shall he then be poor? No, I do not think I choose that, for I want them to have at least one luxury, the luxury of giving, and it is so little that a very poor man can give, even if he gives a tenth. I think I would pray Agur's prayer for him: "Give him neither poverty nor riches."

Shall he be handsome? Why yes, if I can choose he shall be "of a beautiful countenance and goodly to look to," and tall; but remember that does not come first. I have chosen first of all that he shall be an earnest Christian, and if he is that, the good looks will not hurt him, and he will certainly be more pleasing, and will have so much more power to influence others.

What shall his business be? Well, if I were to choose it for him, I think I would rather he would be a missionary or a minister, that his whole life might be spent in helping other lives, like the parson in Jean Ingelow's poem, "so anxious not to go to heaven alone." But since he is to be an earnest Christian man, I think I would rather he would choose his own calling, feeling that he would help other lives whatever his daily work may be.

Should Respect His Wife's Mother.
By Marietta Holley (Aunt Samantha.)

It seems to me that the first quality a mother would desire in the man who was to marry her daughter is goodness; since wealth takes wings and knowledge casts a rather cold light on the hearthstone when shining there alone. But the man who will be good to his wife in sunshine and shade, in youth and age, is the one likeliest to make her happy.

She would demand good habits in the one who vowed to comfort and protect her daughter, lest the protector should change into a danger, the comforter into a disgrace. She would like to have him a man who would sometimes give a kindly thought to the woman who toiled early and late to make the sweet wife he loves and admires what she is. And who patiently stepped down and out of the heart and life where she had reigned supreme, leaving him first and dearest. And she would greatly prefer that he should refrain from making the mother-in-law joke. But if she be a sensible woman she will not insist upon this, but quietly efface herself as much as possible, remembering that this has been the mother's lot since first the sons of God looked upon the daughters of men and saw that they were exceedingly and wonderfully fair.

And if she can bring herself to love the intruder, as so many have, and receive a loyal affection in return, why so much the better, the inevitable then becomes endurable. He should have courage, for there will be many lions to pass on the wedded journey and he will be weighted down by the burden of love, the care of one dearer to himself, for this the mother imperatively demands that he must love her daughter, she must be to him the one woman in the world, for love's torch is the brightest light upon earth to light the wedded pair.

He must have patience in abundance, as he will marry a woman and not a saint. And, above all, he should be a Christian, so he will know where to get help and comfort and joy, and discern through the deepest shadows the great light that gilds his road, and can help her onward and upward.

He should be industrious, and have enough of this world's goods to ensure his wife's comfort and prevent her hearing the baying of the wolf at her door, but not rich necessarily, as the woman who marries for riches alone confronts the dire possibility of the riches flying away and nothing but the man remaining when all that made him attractive and worthy of affection is gone.

He should be passably good looking, since it would be pleasanter to look across the coffee urn three hundred mornings in the year and behold a comely visage. He must have good sense, but not be too brilliant, as a meteor would not give as good satisfaction for household needs as a more mellow and steadier light.

Polite, Patient, Confident and Loving.
By Margaret E. Sangster.

If I had a daughter in the sweet bloom of her years, when a husband might loom up on the horizon, far would it be from me to choose for her in a matter of such personal importance. Yet I might give advice, and I hope I would do it tactfully, for much pre-matrimonial counsel defeats its own ends, confirms hesitation, and absolutely sends girls and men the opposite way from which the counsellor warned them.

Only on a solid foundation of true love and real respect can she or can he hope to build an edifice which will last. They must choose for themselves.

I would like to see my daughter marry a man whose mother had early trained him in unselfishness at home. I would prefer a man who had as a boy lived with sisters, two older, and three younger perhaps, and waited on them all, and who had been their escort, companion and friend.

The most charming man in the whole world is the man who appreciates a woman's need of small courtesies, who never in any circumstances finds fault or interferes in what is beyond his province, who keeps to his own side of the line in home management, and does not prowl around where he is not wanted. A polite, considerate, patient gentleman makes an ideal everyday sort of a husband.

If my daughter is wise she will not pin her faith to a man who has no reverence for God, nor belief in the Heavenly Father. A man who has no definite religious principles, no convictions, who is disposed to ignore the claims of the church and of the Savior, may be otherwise amiable, but he will not have ballast enough for the crisis of life. A profane or intemperate man should be avoided by the girl who is asked to put herself in the keeping of another. A man should be of knightly purity and stainless honor when he seeks the hand of pure maiden.

PAYS ITS RESPECTS

TO PARTIES WHO ONCE RESIDED IN THIS CITY.

The Roller Monthly, of Canton, Makes a Few Uncomplimentary Remarks.

The Roller Monthly, a magazine of Canton, pays its respects to some parties who used to reside here in the following uncomplimentary manner:

In a recent number of "Newspaperdom," a writer from this city, whose signature testifies that he is connected with the business management of the News-Democrat, stated that Canton was in sore need of a writer of advertisements for local business men, and advised some experienced young man to locate here and establish himself in that business. This writer, like the majority of the force of that paper, is himself an importation, and, with the others, ridicules and sneers at local journalism, and is making an attempt to show the old residents "how to run a city newspaper." He prefers to have a stranger locate here and secure work, rather than it should be given to a Cantonian. There are a number of bright young men connected with the newspapers and printing offices in this city who have the ability to become satisfactory "ad. writers," if there was a demand for their services, and, in fact, several of the leading business houses of the city do now employ an expert to write their advertising matter for them. The truth of the matter is that the majority of Canton merchants think that money paid for the writing of an ad. is money as good as wasted.

Another truth is that to produce good advertising matter for a diversity of businesses, would occasion considerable study by the writer as well as expense in procuring proper books, magazines and papers relative thereto. Some advertising matter may be written off-hand in a few moments, while others may take hours if not days to produce. How many advertisers in a city like Canton would pay the ad. writer $3 for an ad. that took him half a day to produce; or $1 for one that took an hour or more of his time? Some years ago, the writer issued a circular to the business men of Canton and vicinity, offering his services to assist in writing their advertising matter, and to supply them with clippings of ads, etc., from out-of-papers, in their especial line of business, etc., etc. He spent several dollars for postage stamps and mailed the circulars in sealed envelopes to the most prominent advertisers and business men in Canton and elsewhere. He states another truth when he says that long, long since, he ceased looking for his first reply to that circular letter. Most of the Canton advertisements of today are reproduced (excepting the firm name, prices, etc.) from such journals, as the Advertising World, Printers' Ink, the Adv. Writer, etc. No, I don't believe I would advise any one to take the News-Democrat man's advice and try to make a living in this city by the means of "ad. writing."

THE STAR BARGAIN STORE

The Greatest Clearance Sale in the History of Our Store will begin

Saturday, January 26,

and will continue until every department will be cleared of its surplus stock and all our odds and ends are sold, regardless of value or cost . . . . .

After the greatest year of business we have ever experienced we are determined to close out every piece of winter goods at prices which will pay you to put in a supply for future wants. Cost and value will not be considered to gain a point, viz: to make room for Spring Goods, which will soon begin to arrive.

In our great Cloak Department Jackets at 1-4 and 1-3 their former prices, we are determined not to carry over a single Jacket, Cape or Suit and here are the prices which will move them:

$2.00 A rack full of ladies' and misses jackets, sold at $7.50, $8.50 and $10; your choice for $2.00.

$3.98 50 black and colored ladies and misses jackets, all this season's styles, sold at $10 and $12, your choice $3.98.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1901.

COUNTY TREASURER.

"Have you any definite, well developed knowledge as to where we can secure an individual who could be prevailed upon to accept this berth? Applications will be placed on file.

LEGISLATION.

With two representatives to elect, there promises to be a lively time for a place in the race at the coming Republican primaries. Keep your eyes on the candidates. There is the promise of a warm contest. Can you pick the winners?

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

A little chat with Mr. Healy, of the light company, develops the fact that he is determined that East Liverpool shall have a first-class lighting or illuminating system, and we believe that Mr. H. means just that which he says. We await developments.

COMMISSIONER.

When Commissioner French retires from the berth which he has filled so acceptably to his constituents, can you give us a hint as to the individual who will succeed him? We are thinking of forming a "guessing bee," and we may offer a prize for the successful buzzer.

CHESTER.

Our little neighbor across the river has a case within its borders that may yet develop into very serious trouble for a resident of that community. If the story be true, the offender against the law should rest in the penitentiary for the remainder of his life, and then count himself lucky. We await developments.

ABOMINABLE.

The journalist who would indulge in a miserable pun over the death of the lamented Christie, and then find amusement in writing a head announcing the death of the lamented Queen Victoria, has evidently mistaken his calling, and he should take a few years off in order to cultivate a fund of common sense.

DON'T.

Don't do a mean and cowardly act. Don't lie, by word or deed. Don't be guilty of misrepresentation. Don't be a loafer. Don't be a trickster. Don't swindle and cheat any one; not even a candidate for office. Don't imagine that this big, round, busy, hustling globe will cease to revolve or do business when you pass in your checks. Don't be a professing Christian on Sunday, and a real boozier and gambler all the rest of the week. Don't pray that the heathen may be converted, and then rent your property for saloon purposes, or to the scarlet woman, simply because you can get fifty per cent more than you can from a decent individual or a business man who is engaged in a legitimate enterprise. Don't refuse to attempt to pay your honest debts. Don't build a nice little property, call it your own, and then defraud your grocer, butcher, shoemaker, washwoman, carpet dealer, clothier, etc., etc., and then add insult to injury by coolly informing your creditors that it keeps you busy in meeting your life insurance, your building and loan association dues, lodge dues, and an occasional trip to Atlantic City. Don't beat the poor printer; don't even think of doing it; give him a chance to invest his money in houses and lots—poorhouses and lots of libel suits and labels. Don't be a scheming rascal and you won't get caught. Don't.

SAFETY BRAKES.

The street car line on the Calcutta road has become a necessity. Either that avenue or an adjacent one must be made use of in order that rapid transit shall exist between the central or business part of East Liverpool and the splendid residence sites now on the market in the vicinity of the Grandview and Riverview plats of ground. From a health standpoint, these residence sites are unexceptional, resting as they do above the smoke, fog and malarial influences, while from the standpoint of beauty and superb landscape views, they cannot be equalled anywhere in all this section of country. This is not an advertisement, or mere claptrap and gush, at so much a line, but a statement of plain fact, as any lover of beauty will admit after a tour of inspection on a day of sunshine and health giving breezes. This being a fact, the next thing to do is to convince the public that the street car line on the Calcutta road is just as safe as is that through the heart of East Liverpool. Can this be demonstrated? We believe that it can. We have had two object lessons which have demonstrated that it must be done. The public will not be satisfied with anything less than a complete, thorough and practical test and demonstration along the line of perfect safety to passengers and crew of said street cars. Heavier grades than that of the Calcutta route have been mastered with ease at other points of our country, and the ascent and descent thereof have been rendered perfectly safe, the cars being under perfect control and accidents rendered next to an impossibility. That which has been accomplished elsewhere can be accomplished here. The men in charge in this city are not to be overcome or conquered by trifles. "Necessity is the mother of invention." The necessity now exists respecting this special feature. The inventive genius will be on hand in due time, and that time is not far distant. We predict that all existing difficulties will vanish within the next few weeks, and that the East Liverpool public will express its wonder that the ascent and descent of the Calcutta road, by means of an electrical street car line, was ever even momentarily considered an unsafe or dangerous venture. Turn on the power.

The street car line on the Calcutta road has become a necessity. Either that avenue or an adjacent one must be made use of in order that rapid transit shall exist between the central or business part of East Liverpool and the splendid residence sites now on the market in the vicinity of the Grandview and Riverview plats of ground. From a health standpoint, these residence sites are unexceptional, resting as they do above the smoke, fog and malarial influences, while from the standpoint of beauty and superb landscape views, they cannot be equalled anywhere in all this section of country. This is not an advertisement, or mere claptrap and gush, at so much a line, but a statement of plain fact, as any lover of beauty will admit after a tour of inspection on a day of sunshine and health giving breezes. This being a fact, the next thing to do is to convince the public that the street car line on the Calcutta road is just as safe as is that through the heart of East Liverpool. Can this be demonstrated? We believe that it can. We have had two object lessons which have demonstrated that it must be done. The public will not be satisfied with anything less than a complete, thorough and practical test and demonstration along the line of perfect safety to passengers and crew of said street cars. Heavier grades than that of the Calcutta route have been mastered with ease at other points of our country, and the ascent and descent thereof have been rendered perfectly safe, the cars being under perfect control and accidents rendered next to an impossibility. That which has been accomplished elsewhere can be accomplished here. The men in charge in this city are not to be overcome or conquered by trifles. "Necessity is the mother of invention." The necessity now exists respecting this special feature. The inventive genius will be on hand in due time, and that time is not far distant. We predict that all existing difficulties will vanish within the next few weeks, and that the East Liverpool public will express its wonder that the ascent and descent of the Calcutta road, by means of an electrical street car line, was ever even momentarily considered an unsafe or dangerous venture. Turn on the power.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1901.

COUNTY TREASURER.

"Have you any definite, well developed knowledge as to where we can secure an individual who could be prevailed upon to accept this berth? Applications will be placed on file.

LEGISLATION.

With two representatives to elect, there promises to be a lively time for a place in the race at the coming republican primaries. Keep your eyes on the candidates. There is the promise of a warm contest. Can you pick the winners?

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

A little chat with Mr. Healy, of the light company, develops the fact that he is determined that East Liverpool shall have a first-class lighting or illuminating system, and we believe that Mr. H. means just that which he says. We await developments.

COMMISSIONER.

When Commissioner French retires from the berth which he has filled so acceptably to his constituents, can you give us a hint as to the individual who will succeed him? We are thinking of forming a "guessing bee," and we may offer a prize for the successful buzzer.

CHESTER.

Our little neighbor across the river has a case within its borders that may yet develop into very serious trouble for a resident of that community. If the story be true, the offender against the law should rest in the penitentiary for the remainder of his life, and then count himself lucky. We await developments.

ABOMINABLE.

The journalist who would indulge in a miserable pun over the death of the lamented Christie, and then find amusement in writing a head announcing the death of the lamented Queen Victoria, has evidently mistaken his calling, and he should take a few years off in order to cultivate a fund of common sense.

DON'T.

Don't do a mean and cowardly act. Don't lie, by word or deed. Don't be guilty of misrepresentation. Don't be a loafer. Don't be a trickster. Don't swindle and cheat any one; not even a candidate for office. Don't imagine that this big, round, busy, hustling globe will cease to revolve or do business when you pass in your checks. Don't be a professing Christian on Sunday, and a real boozier and gambler all the rest of the week. Don't pray that the heathen may be converted, and then rent your property for saloon purposes, or to the scarlet woman, simply because you can get fifty per cent more than you can from a decent individual or a business man who is engaged in a legitimate enterprise. Don't refuse to attempt to pay your honest debts. Don't build a nice little property, call it your own, and then defraud your grocer, butcher, shoemaker, washwoman, carpet dealer, clothier, etc., etc., and then add insult to injury by coolly informing your creditors that it keeps you busy in meeting your life insurance, your building and loan association dues, lodge dues, and an occasional trip to Atlantic City. Don't beat the poor printer; don't even think of doing it; give him a chance to invest his money in houses and lots—poorhouses and lots of libel suits and labels. Don't be a scheming rascal and you won't get caught. Don't.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Council met at Columbian park at 1 o'clock today.

A. G. Minehart is ill at his home on Franklin street.

Tom Pickal is ill at his home on Fourth street with an attack of lumbago.

Council met on Kossuth street yesterday afternoon and talked assessments.

Miss Nellie Cannon, of Sixth street, has returned home after a visit with friends in Steubenville.

W. P. Gardner left this afternoon for Florida, where he will spend the balance of the winter.

Eugene Bradshaw, of the Bradshaw Pottery company of Rogers, was in the city today on business.

The township trustees experienced a slight increase in business today. The cold weather did it.

George C. Thompson and wife will leave in a few days for Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Kenneth, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bulger, of Sixth street, is ill with an attack of chicken pox.

George H. Owen has sold the property of Henry Peterson, Elm street, to Lydia T. Vernon; consideration $1,700.

The revival services held last evening in the Methodist Protestant church was largely attended and much good was accomplished.

Mrs. Delaney is slowly improving, and it is thought she will be well enough tomorrow to be taken to the home of relatives in New Jersey.

An infant son of Michael McGinnis died at the home of its parents on Sixth street Wednesday. The remains were laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery yesterday.

Suit has been entered in the court of Justice Rose by Philip Smith against David M. McLane to recover on a promissory note for $50 with interest. The case is set for trial on Monday, January 28, at 8 a. m.

The vested choir of St. Stephen's church will meet this evening in the church at 7:30 o'clock to rehearse special music for the memorial service to be held on Sunday afternoon. All members are requested to be present.

The case of Inspector Martin Cohen versus Albert Geon for selling a certain brand of maple syrup which is not up to the weight required by law, was up in the court of Justice McLane this afternoon, and owing to the absence of any of the parties who handle the stuff and are back of the local grocer, the hearing was continued until next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The local merchants purchased the syrup from a jobbing firm of Wheeling, who in turn bought it from the firm which manufacturers it in Vermont. The stuff is bottled when sent out from the manufacturing concern, so that the Vermont people will have to bear the brunt, and it will be necessary to have that firm represented at the hearing. Mr. Cohen stated this morning that he had profited by the experience of yesterday and would try no more cases here. In case the defendant in this affair concludes to stand trial it will be taken to Lisbon.

HE GOT DRUNK

And His Work Was Delayed Until He Embraced Sobriety.

As per the history in such cases he is a first-class workman, and on this account was engaged to do a piece of work requiring artistic skill. His patron was anxious that the said work should be completed speedily in order that business might be facilitated. The sober man directed his ground work and then deemed it necessary to get his spirits up by pouring spirits down. His employer became impatient for his return from the rum hell that he had visited, and was finally compelled to close his establishment and proceed to business interests elsewhere. Later on he called the attention of the wife of the aforesaid artist to neglect on the part of the partner of her joys and sorrows and requested to know when he would bodily materialize. The answer sounded back that her hubby was "rum rum," and unfit for duty, that he would report later on, which the said artist finally did, fessed up fully, apologized and requested that he might be permitted to finish the job. permission was given on account of the fact that he was a genuine artist and a good fellow when sober. This incident is merely given to show the power of the rum devil to destroy the life and happiness of otherwise competent and skilled workmen who might be an ornament to society and a helper and sustainer to the home circle, and this incident occurred in East Liverpool. Why not kill the rum devil?

EVENTS IN BRIEF.

The bill for a statue to former Governor Peirpont passed the West Virginia senate. The Morgan town charter bill awaited the governor's signature.

The Cleveland flyer was wrecked and the engineer badly hurt in an accident at the cross-over on the Port Wayne railroad, west of Glenfield station, near Pittsburg.

At Cumberland, Md., the jury, after being out one hour, brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of Alonzo Eby and Thomas Moore, charged with attempted bank robbery.

By a party vote of 9 to 6 the house committee on coinage ordered a favorable report on the bill of Representative Hill, of Connecticut, "to maintain the silver dollar at parity with gold."

Preparations are being made to put the furnaces of the Lorain Steel company at Lorain, O., in blast the first of next week after a six months' shutdown. The shape and blooming mills will also be started up full blast.

A case of smallpox was discovered in Washington, Pa., the victim being F. V. Warden, a Baltimore and Ohio railroad carpenter. The board of health was at once notified and the car in which Warden had been confined was placed under quarantine.

SOUTH SIDE.

Broke the Dog's Leg.

Leander Woodmansee, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Woodmansee, yesterday broke the leg of a small pet dog, and for a time it was thought the animal would have to be shot.

It was finally decided to make an attempt to have the fracture reduced, and with that end in view the canine was taken to a physician stopping at the Chester hotel. Some plaster was obtained from one of the potteries and after splints had been put upon the injured member, it was encased in the plaster.

The dog is doing well today, and it is thought if the proper care is taken of the animal it will get well.

Not Meeting With Success.

The projectors of the proposed glass plant for Chester are not meeting with the success they expected.

Up to the present not more than $25,000 has been subscribed, and the bulk of that has been taken by South-side people. As the original intention was to capitalize the concern at $50,000, it will be seen some tall hustling must be done in order to raise the necessary amount.

A Peculiar Affliction.

A. J. Van Dyne is just at present suffering from a very peculiar affliction.

The gentleman is engineer at the Burgess stilt works, and a few days ago discovered a small pimple on his right hand between the thumb and first finger. He removed the top of the cuticle, and in a very short time he had a very sore hand. The sore was very painful and it was not long until evidences of blood poisoning were manifested. Mr. Van Dyne is now treating the injury for that disease.

Southside Notes.

Motorman George Wynn is off duty owing to illness. His place is being filled by John Cunningham.

H. V. Dague, of Pittsburg, is a Chester business visitor today.

Suffered a Relapse.

Harry Stewart is confined to his home by illness. The young man had been suffering from grip for several days, and yesterday suffered a relapse.

Plenty of Grip.

There is a great deal of sickness in Chester just now, the prevailing disease being grip.

His employer became impatient for his return from the rum hell that he had visited, and was finally compelled to close his establishment and proceed to business interests elsewhere. Later on he called the attention of the wife of the aforesaid artist to neglect on the part of the partner of her joys and sorrows and requested to know when he would bodily materialize. The answer sounded back that her hubby was "rum rum," and unfit for duty, that he would report later on, which the said artist finally did, fessed up fully, apologized and requested that he might be permitted to finish the job. permission was given on account of the fact that he was a genuine artist and a good fellow when sober. This incident is merely given to show the power of the rum devil to destroy the life and happiness of otherwise competent and skilled workmen who might be an ornament to society and a helper and sustainer to the home circle, and this incident occurred in East Liverpool. Why not kill the rum devil?

EVENTS IN BRIEF.

The bill for a statue to former Governor Peirpont passed the West Virginia senate. The Morgan town charter bill awaited the governor's signature.

The Cleveland flyer was wrecked and the engineer badly hurt in an accident at the cross-over on the Fort Wayne railroad, west of Glenfield station, near Pittsburg.

At Cumberland, Md., the jury, after being out one hour, brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of Alonzo Eby and Thomas Moore, charged with attempted bank robbery.

By a party vote of 9 to 6 the house committee on coinage ordered a favorable report on the bill of Representative Hill, of Connecticut, "to maintain the silver dollar at parity with gold."

Broke the Dog's Leg.

Leander Woodmansee, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Woodmansee, yesterday broke the leg of a small pet dog, and for a time it was thought the animal would have to be shot.

It was finally decided to make an attempt to have the fracture reduced, and with that end in view the canine was taken to a physician stopping at the Chester hotel. Some plaster was obtained from one of the potters and after splints had been put upon the injured member, it was encased in the plaster.

The dog is doing well today, and it is thought if the proper care is taken of the animal it will get well.

Not Meeting With Success.

The projectors of the proposed glass plant for Chester are not meeting with the success they expected.

Up to the present not more than $25,000 has been subscribed, and the bulk of that has been taken by South-side people. As the original intention was to capitalize the concern at $50,000, it will be seen some tall hustling must be done in order to raise the necessary amount.

A Peculiar Affliction.

A. J. Van Dyne is just at present suffering from a very peculiar affliction.

The gentleman is engineer at the Burgess stilt works, and a few days ago discovered a small pimple on his right hand between the thumb and first finger. He removed the top of the cuticle, and in a very short time he had a very sore hand. The sore was very painful and it was not long until evidences of blood poisoning were manifested. Mr. Van Dyne is now treating the injury for that disease.

Southside Notes.

Motorman George Wynn is off duty owing to illness. His place is being filled by John Cunningham.

H. V. Dague, of Pittsburg, is a Chester business visitor today.

Suffered a Relapse.

Harry Stewart is confined to his home by illness. The young man had been suffering from grip for several days, and yesterday suffered a relapse.

Plenty of Grip.

There is a great deal of sickness in Chester just now, the prevailing disease being grip.

The case of Inspector Martin Cohen versus Albert Geon for selling a certain brand of maple syrup which is not up to the weight required by law, was up in the court of Justice McLane this afternoon, and owing to the absence of any of the parties who handle the stuff and are back of the local grocer, the hearing was continued until next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The local merchants purchased the syrup from a jobbing firm of Wheeling, who in turn bought it from the firm which manufactures it in Vermont. The stuff is bottled when sent out from the manufacturing concern, so that the Vermont people will have to bear the brunt, and it will be necessary to have that firm represented at the hearing. Mr. Cohen stated this morning that he had profited by the experience of yesterday and would try no more cases here. In case the defendant in this affair concludes to stand trial it will be taken to Lisbon.

EAST END.

RIVER ROAD.

THE RESIDENTS OF EAST END HAVE A KICK.

Law Requires That Street Railway Company Shall Plank the Crossings.

The people of East End and vicinity who use the river road and make trips to the city proper each day, have a large sized kick on the condition of that thoroughfare with reference to plank crossings along the street railway.

The law required that the council shall make this a part of the conditions governing the road when the franchise was granted, and the claim is made that this has never been required of the East Liverpool company, and that there has never been a single plank used at any of the numerous points between East End and the city when they are compelled to cross the railroad.

There are about eight crossings along the river road and a great deal of injury is done to the vehicles that are jolted across the tracks many times a day.

The various owners of teams in the upper part of town have complained to the commissioner, whose duty it is to look after the matter, but state that no attention whatever has been paid to the request.

They now propose to circulate a petition which will be presented to council asking that the proper parties be required to make the crossings passable, and in case of a refusal, impeachment proceedings will be instituted.

The agitation has now reached a point where it will not down, and since the parties interested are positive they have the law on their side, will leave no stone unturned that will bring about the end sought.

IMPORTANT MEETING

OF STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEES TO BE HELD.

The Session Will Take Place at Brotherhood Hall on the Morning of January 26.

At 1 o'clock on the morning of January 26 will be held one of the most important meetings in the history of local assembly No. 52, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees.

Brotherhood hall has been secured for the occasion and a large number of new members will be taken into the organization. An effort is being made to have all the new men on both lines receive the obligation on this occasion, but it cannot be told as yet whether this can be accomplished, as the number will reach something over 50.

Since the conductors were added to the East Liverpool line the working force of this road has been more than doubled, and in consequence some 34 new men are now regularly employed who are not members of the union, and it is expected they will be initiated on the occasion of this meeting.

In addition to these there are eight extra motormen and eight conductors who are eligible. The Rock Springs line has been breaking in a number of new men, and they will also be initiated. So if the plans now formed do not miscarry, a rousing meeting will be held and the officers will have their hands full for several hours.

VAST SUM FOR THE NAVY.

Cannon Referred to Great Total. If New Ships Desired Are Authorized.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house continued consideration of the naval appropriation bill and practically almost completed it before adjournment.

Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee, in a statement, asserted that when the ships now authorized and those desired to be authorized had been completed, if they are, about $320,000,000 would have been spent upon the new navy, and that in his opinion the time to stop will then have arrived.

An amendment offered by Mr. Rixey, of Virginia, a Democratic member of the naval committee, to strike out the provision in the bill for two battleships and two cruisers, was defeated, 46 to 90.

ADD HOUSE

The senate devoted some time to the Indian appropriation bill, and made only fair progress. The chief feature of the debate was a sharp attack by Mr. Pettigrew, on the Dawes commission, which, he said, was extravagant and was accomplishing little in the way of results. An interesting announcement made by him was that he did not purpose to filibuster against the bill.

The senate adopted the Pettigrew resolution asking the war department for information concerning the reported deportation of A. Mabini, a citizen of the Philippines, to Guam.

King Charles to Attend Funeral.

Lisbon, Jan. 25.—King Charles, it was expected, will leave on Saturday for London to attend the funeral of Queen Victoria.

MACARTHUR WAS BADLY HAZED. An Ex-Cadet, His Former Tentmate, So Testified.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The committee which was investigating the hazing of Cadet Booz had before it F. H. Cunningham, a teacher at the Hamilton Institute, New York city, who formerly was a cadet at West Point. He was the tent mate of Cadet MacArthur, a son of General MacArthur. Mr. Cunningham entered the academy in June, 1898. He testified that his tent mate was MacArthur. He described the hazing of MacArthur in July, 1898. He said he reeled into the tent after being hazed and went into convulsions. He was writhing and moaning so that he (Cunningham) covered him with a blanket to prevent his moans from being heard by the officers of the day. MacArthur's inquisitors after the hazing, he said, were very much exercised over what they had done and were anxious to see him restored. Barry, one of them, brought water to restore him. Asked as to what was done to MacArthur, Cunningham replied that they had done everything which came under the head of "exercising."

ONE MAN KILLED.

Fatal Accident In a Blast Furnace at Bellaire, O.—Others Received Injuries.

Wheeling, Jan. 25.—A distressing accident occurred at the blast furnaces of the Bellaire (O.) Steel works, by which one workman was killed instantly and four others seriously injured. The men were at their usual work when there was a sudden explosion of hot metal, which burst forth with the fury of a veritable Vesuvius.

Thomas Murphy was instantly killed, being burned to a crisp within a minute. Harry Thomas, the manager of the furnace, was badly burned, as were Chester Lowe, Jacob Hore and Blaine Redman, furnacemen. Lowe is the worst injured and may die.

VAST SUM FOR THE NAVY.

Cannon Referred to Great Total. If New Ships Desired Are Authorized.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house continued consideration of the naval appropriation bill and practically almost completed it before adjournment.

Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee, in a statement, asserted that when the ships now authorized and those desired to be authorized had been completed, if they are, about $320,000,000 would have been spent upon the new navy, and that in his opinion the time to stop will then have arrived.

An amendment offered by Mr. Rixey, of Virginia, a Democratic member of the naval committee, to strike out the provision in the bill for two battleships and two cruisers, was defeated, 46 to 90.

ADD HOUSE

The senate devoted some time to the Indian appropriation bill, and made only fair progress. The chief feature of the debate was a sharp attack by Mr. Pettigrew, on the Daves commission, which, he said, was extravagant and was accomplishing little in the way of results. An interesting announcement made by him was that he did not purpose to filibuster against the bill.

The senate adopted the Pettigrew resolution asking the war department for information concerning the reported deportation of A. Mabini, a citizen of the Philippines, to Guam.

King Charles to Attend Funeral.

Lisbon, Jan. 25.—King Charles, it was expected, will leave on Saturday for London to attend the funeral of Queen Victoria.

MACARTHUR WAS BADLY HAZED. An Ex-Cadet, His Former Tentmate, So Testified.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The committee which was investigating the hazing of Cadet Booz had before it F. H. Cunningham, a teacher at the Hamilton institute, New York city, who formerly was a cadet at West Point. He was the tent mate of Cadet MacArthur, a son of General MacArthur. Mr. Cunningham entered the academy in June, 1898. He testified that his tent mate was MacArthur. He described the hazing of MacArthur in July, 1898. He said he reeled into the tent after being hazed and went into convulsions. He was writhing and moaning so that he (Cunningham) covered him with a blanket to prevent his moans from being heard by the officer of the day. MacArthur's inquisitors after the hazing, he said, were very much exercised over what they had done and were anxious to see him restored. Barry, one of them, brought water to restore him. Asked as to what was done to MacArthur, Cunningham replied that they had done everything which came under the head of "exercising."

ONE MAN KILLED.

Fatal Accident in a Blast Furnace at Bellaire, O.—Others Received Injuries.

Wheeling, Jan. 25.—A distressing accident occurred at the blast furnaces of the Bellaire (O.) Steel works, by which one workman was killed instantly and four others seriously injured. The men were at their usual work when there was a sudden explosion of hot metal, which burst forth with the fury of a veritable Vesuvius.

Thomas Murphy was instantly killed, being burned to a crisp within a minute. Harry Thomas, the manager of the furnace, was badly burned, as were Chester Lowe, Jacob Hore and Blaine Redman, furnacemen. Lowe is the worst injured and may die.

Thanked For Sympathy Resolution.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—In the reichstag the president (Count von Ballestrom) read a telegram from Emperor William containing sincere thanks for the house's resolution of sympathy on the death of his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

EAST END.

RIVER ROAD.

THE RESIDENTS OF EAST END
HAVE A KICK.

Law Requires That Street Railway
Company Shall Plank the Crossings.

The people of East End and vicinity who use the river road and make trips to the city proper each day, have a large sized kick on the condition of that thoroughfare with reference to plank crossings along the street railway.

The law required that the council shall make this a part of the conditions governing the road when the franchise was granted, and the claim is made that this has never been required of the East Liverpool company, and that there has never been a single plank used at any of the numerous points between East End and the city when they are compelled to cross the railroad.

There are about eight crossings along the river road and a great deal of injury is done to the vehicles that are jolted across the tracks many times a day.

The various owners of teams in the upper part of town have complained to the commissioner, whose duty it is to look after the matter, but state that no attention whatever has been paid to the request.

They now propose to circulate a petition which will be presented to council asking that the proper parties be required to make the crossings passable, and in case of a refusal, impeachment proceedings will be instituted.

The agitation has now reached a point where it will not down, and since the parties interested are positive they have the law on their side, will leave no stone unturned that will bring about the end sought.

IMPORTANT MEETING

OF STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEES
TO BE HELD.

The Session Will Take Place at Brotherhood Hall on the Morning of January 26.

At 1 o'clock on the morning of January 26 will be held one of the most important meetings in the history of local assembly No. 52, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees.

Brotherhood hall has been secured for the occasion and a large number of new members will be taken into the organization. An effort is being made to have all the new men on both lines receive the obligation on this occasion, but it cannot be told as yet whether this can be accomplished, as the number will reach something over 50.

Since the conductors were added to the East Liverpool line the working force of this road has been more than doubled, and in consequence some 34 new men are now regularly employed who are not members of the union, and it is expected they will be initiated on the occasion of this meeting.

In addition to these there are eight extra motormen and eight conductors who are eligible. The Rock Springs line has been breaking in a number of new men, and they will also be initiated. So if the plans now formed do not miscarry, a rousing meeting will be held and the officers will have their hands full for several hours.

DEEP MOURNING.

All Subjects Expected to Honor the Queen's Memory.

FUNERAL TO OCCUR FEB. 2.

Imposing Military Pageant May Occur In London.

KING RETURNED TO OSBORNE.

Proclaimed King In London According to Ancient Rites—Quaint Ceremonies Followed the Precedents of Medieval Times. A Strange Spectacle Presented by the Officials of the College of Arms—The Proclamation Read at Different Quarters—King Replied to McKinley.

London, Jan. 25.—An extraordinary Gazette publishes an order in council—"That it is expected that all persons upon the present occasion, the death of her late majesty of blessed and glorious memory, put themselves into deepest mourning."

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 25.—So hampered have been the arrangements at Osborne that the body of Queen Victoria still lay last night in the bed room where she died. The elaborate decorations necessary in turning the dining room in Osborne house into a chapel ardente occupied so much time that although the royal household waited hour after hour for the first private service, it was found impossible to hold this yesterday.

Services May Occur Today.

All being well, however, the solemn function may be performed this morning by the bishop of Winchester, in the presence of King Edward, Emperor William and almost every other member of the royal family.

The coffin was brought to Osborne last evening and was taken through the queen's private gate, which had not been previously used since her death. Emperor William was the first person to see it. The coffin body will be transferred to the dining room, now hung with deep purple. The dais is wreathed with the royal standard, and on each side are great corals. Madonnas by famous painters hang from the draped walls. In one corner magnificent wreaths from all parts of the world crush their blossoms one against the other. Among these the most beautiful are from Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria. Around the coffin chairs are arranged for the royal mourners.

London, Jan. 25.—It was understood the body of Queen Victoria will arrive in London on the morning of Feb. 2 and be taken across the metropolis to Paddington. Troops will line the streets. The coffin will be placed on a gun carriage and draped with flags. On arriving at Paddington station, it was expected, the remains will be transferred to a train for Windsor, finally reaching St. George's chapel about noon, where a magnificent funeral service, it was expected, will take place.

Lord Pelham Clinton authorized the statement that there will be no lying in state. However, there is good reason to believe that many persons will be afforded the privilege of seeing their dead queen as she lies in the gorgeously transformed dining room, where she will remain until Feb. 1. In the hope that this may be the case the people are already pouring into Cowes.

Yesterday King Edward replied to thousands of messages he has received. To those from rulers and great personages he replied in person. To those from minor dignitaries he commanded his equerry to return thanks. A particularly grateful message went to President McKinley.

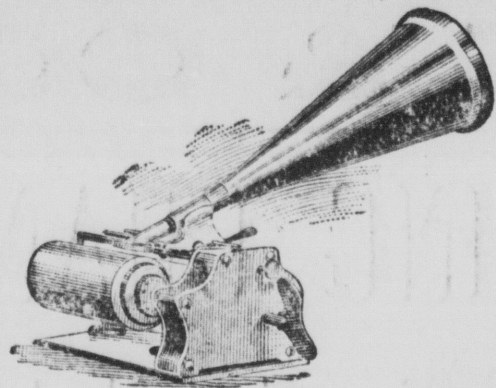

The new queen moved ceaselessly around, seeing that everything should be done in order. She refused to allow herself to be called queen. "Your majesty," said one of her entourage, "Your royal highness, you mean," was the immediate interruption.

It was chiefly due to Queen Alexandra's desire to design carefully the minutest detail of the death chapel that the first funeral service was not held yesterday.

King Returned to Osborne.

Cowes, Jan. 25.—An expectant crowd lined Trinity pier Thursday, as the royal yacht Alberta, with King Edward on board, turned the point, and the first gun of the royal salute thundered from the British warship Australia. All the flags hitherto half masted were hauled down, marking the suspension of mourning till the king landed. The depressing surroundings were somewhat lightened by the presence of the naval and military staffs in brilliant uniforms.

The king landed about 2:45 p. m. In acknowledgment of the silent greetings of the people he frequently raised his hat. He came ashore with the Duke of Connaught and drove to Osborne house, where Emperor William met him at the gates and warmly greeted him.

Immediately after the king landed the flags were again half masted.

London, Jan. 25.—The quaint ceremonies with which King Edward VII was proclaimed at various points of the metropolis Thursday followed ancient precedents. The officials purposely arranged the function about an hour ahead of the published announcement, and some of the inhabitants, when they awoke, were surprised to find the way between St. James palace and the city lined with troops. About 10,000 soldiers, life guards, horse guards, foot guards and other cavalry and infantry regiments had been brought from Aldershot and London barracks after midnight. All the officers had craped on their arms and the drums and brass instruments were shrouded with crape. The troops, in themselves, made an imposing spectacle, but they were entirely eclipsed by the strange spectacle presented by the officials of the college of arms.

A blare of trumpets announced the progress of the cavalcade as it proceeded through Trafalgar square and the Strand.

The ceremony began at St. James palace, where, about 9 o'clock a. m., Edward VII was proclaimed king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. The king was not present. The proclamation, which was read by William Henry Weldon, king-at-arms since 1894, and formerly Windsor herald, was as follows:

"Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to call to his mercy our late sovereign, Lady Queen Victoria, of blessed and glorious memory, by whose decease the imperial crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward, we, therefore, the lords spiritual and temporal of this realm, being here assisted with those of her late majesty's privy council, with numbers of other principal gentlemen of quality, the lord mayor, aldermen and citizens of London, do now hereby, with one voice, consent of tongue and heart to publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward is now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, Edward VII, by the grace of God king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith, Emperor of India, to whom we acknowledge all faith and constant obedience with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom all kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince Edward VII with long and happy years to reign over us."

London, Jan. 25.—It was understood that the progress of the body of Queen Victoria through London will be an imposing military pageant and that members of the houses of lords and commons will be invited to follow the procession. There seemed to be some apprehension lest a change of decision should omit the London portion of the program. The Daily Telegraph editorially claimed for London a right to share in the obsequies, and declared that nothing but the deceased's own wishes should prevent this.

The funeral has been delayed to enable all the foreign representatives to arrive at Windsor in time. It is announced that Grand Duke Sergius and the Grand Duchess will come from Russia to be present at the ceremony.

The procession, joined by the Heralds, in which rode the lord mayor and others, moved through the streets, announcing the proclamation at different points.

COST OF BECOMING AN ENGLISH DOCTOR.

Cost of Becoming an English Doctor.

According to the British Medical Journal, the cost to qualify for a doctor is between £700 and £1,200, says the London Telegraph. The calculation works out as follows:

"Most of the London hospital schools arrange that by paying a composition fee of from a little over £100 to £150, either in one sum or by instalments, the student becomes a perpetual student, and is entitled to attend all necessary lectures and hospitals for the double diploma. As cheapness here cannot be considered a special recommendation, we take the larger sum for the purpose of our estimate, and adding to the necessary expenses for maintenance, clothing, books, anatomical parts, etc., at £100 a year for five years—a rather low estimate for London—we find that the total cost of an ordinary student at a London hospital who qualifies at the Conjoint board would be from £650 to £700; that of a university graduate would necessarily be greater, and might amount to £1,000. Of course, there is always the possibility in either case that rejections at intermediate examinations may prolong the period of studentship by an additional six months or a year, or may even render coaching necessary and so add to the cost."

Not the most frugal could find much to cavil at on the score of extravagance. The main interest of the question, however, centers in the possibility—not to say probability—of paternal families having half a dozen sons all wishing to embrace a liberal profession.

In the hope that this may be the case the people are already pouring into Cowes.

Yesterday King Edward replied to thousands of messages he has received. To those from rulers and great personages he replied in person. To those from minor dignitaries he commanded his equerry to return thanks. A particularly grateful message went to President McKinley.

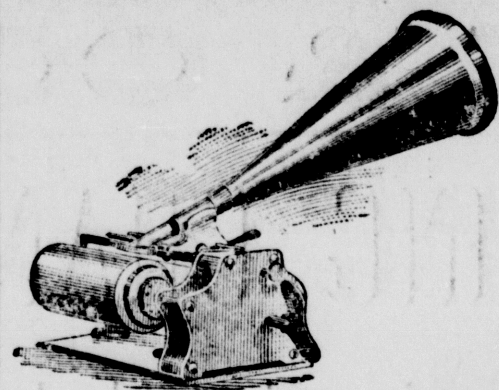

The new queen moved caselessly around, seeing that everything should be done in order. She refused to allow herself to be called queen. "Your majesty," said one of her entourage, "Your royal highness, you mean," was the immediate interruption.

It was chiefly due to Queen Alexandra's desire to design carefully the minutest detail of the death chapel that the first funeral service was not held yesterday.

what lightened by the presence of the naval and military staffs in brilliant uniforms.

The king landed about 2:45 p. m. In acknowledgment of the silent greetings of the people he frequently raised his hat. He came ashore with the Duke of Connaught and drove to Osborne house, where Emperor William met him at the gates and warmly greeted him.

Immediately after the king landed the flags were again half masted.

London, Jan. 25.—The quaint ceremonies with which King Edward VII was proclaimed at various points of the metropolis Thursday followed ancient precedents. The officials purposely arranged the function about an hour ahead of the published announcement, and some of the inhabitants, when they awoke, were surprised to find the way between St. James palace and the city lined with troops. About 10,000 soldiers, life guards, horse guards, foot guards and other cavalry and infantry regiments had been brought from Aldershot and London barracks after midnight. All the officers had craped on their arms and the drums and brass instruments were shrouded with crape. The troops, in themselves, made an imposing spectacle, but they were entirely eclipsed by the strange spectacle presented by the officials of the college of arms.

A blare of trumpets announced the progress of the cavalcade as it proceeded through Trafalgar square and the Strand.

The ceremony began at St. James palace, where, about 9 o'clock a. m., Edward VII was proclaimed king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. The king was not present. The proclamation, which was read by William Henry Weldon, king-at-arms since 1894, and formerly Windsor herald, was as follows:

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to call to his mercy our late sovereign, Lady Queen Victoria, of blessed and glorious memory, by whose decease the imperial crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward, we, therefore, the lords spiritual and temporal of this realm, being here assisted with those of her late majesty's privy council, with numbers of other principal gentlemen of quality, the lord mayor, aldermen and citizens of London, do now hereby, with one voice, consent of tongue and heart to publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward is now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, Edward VII, by the grace of God king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith, Emperor of India, to whom we acknowledge all faith and constant obedience with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom all kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince Edward VII with long and happy years to reign over us."

London, Jan. 25.—It was understood that the progress of the body of Queen Victoria through London will be an imposing military pageant and that members of the houses of lords and commons will be invited to follow the procession. There seemed to be some apprehension lest a change of decision should omit the London portion of the program. The Daily Telegraph editorially claimed for London a right to share in the obsequies, and declared that nothing but the deceased's own wishes should prevent this.

The funeral has been delayed to enable all the foreign representatives to arrive at Windsor in time. It is announced that Grand Duke Sergius and the Grand Duchess will come from Russia to be present at the ceremony.

The procession, joined by the Her-alds, in which rode the lord mayor and others, moved through the streets, announcing the proclamation at different points.

COST OF BECOMING AN ENGLISH DOCTOR.

Cost of Becoming an English Doctor. According to the British Medical Journal, the cost to qualify for a doctor is between £700 and £1,200, says the London Telegraph. The calculation works out as follows:

"Most of the London hospital schools arrange that by paying a composition fee of from a little over £100 to £150, either in one sum or by instalments, the student becomes a perpetual student, and is entitled to attend all necessary lectures and hospitals for the double diploma. As cheapness here cannot be considered a special recommendation, we take the larger sum for the purpose of our estimate, and adding to the necessary expenses for maintenance, clothing, books, anatomical parts, etc., at £100 a year for five years—a rather low estimate for London—we find that the total cost of an ordinary student at a London hospital who qualifies at the Conjoint board would be from £650 to £700; that of a university graduate would necessarily be greater, and might amount to £1,000. Of course, there is always the possibility in either case that rejections at intermediate examinations may prolong the period of studentship by an additional six months or a year, or may even render coaching necessary, and so add to the cost."

Not the most frugal could find much to cavil at on the score of extravagance. The main interest of the question, however, centers in the possibility—not to say probability—of paterfamilias having half a dozen sons all wishing to embrace a liberal profession.

DEEP MOURNING.

All Subjects Expected to Honor the Queen's Memory.

FUNERAL TO OCCUR FEB. 2.

Imposing Military Pageant May Occur In London.

KING RETURNED TO OSBORNE.

Proclaimed King In London According to Ancient Rites—Quaint Ceremonies Followed the Precedents of Medieval Times. A Strange Spectacle Presented by the Officials of the College of Arms—The Proclamation Read at Different Quarters—King Replied to McKinley.

London, Jan. 25.—An extraordinary Gazette publishes an order in council—"That it is expected that all persons upon the present occasion, the death of her late majesty of blessed and glorious memory, put themselves into deepest mourning."

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 25.—So hampered have been the arrangements at Osborne that the body of Queen Victoria still lay last night in the bed room where she died. The elaborate decorations necessary in turning the dining room in Osborne house into a chapel ardente occupied so much time that although the royal household waited hour after hour for the first private service, it was found impossible to hold this yesterday.

Services May Occur Today.

All being well, however, the solemn function may be performed this morning by the bishop of Winchester, in the presence of King Edward, Emperor William and almost every other member of the royal family.

The coffin was brought to Osborne last evening and was taken through the queen's private gate, which had not been previously used since her death. Emperor William was the first person to see it. The coffin body will be transferred to the dining room, now hung with deep purple. The dais is wreathed with the royal standard, and on each side are great candelabra. Madonnas by famous painters hang from the draped walls. In one corner magnificent wreaths from all parts of the world crush their blooms one against the other. Among these the most beautiful are from Emperor William and Empress Augusta (Victoria). Around the coffin chairs are arranged for the royal mourners.

London, Jan. 25.—It was understood the body of Queen Victoria will arrive in London on the morning of Feb. 2 and be taken across the metropolis to Paddington. Troops will line the streets. The coffin will be placed on a gun carriage and draped with flags. On arriving at Paddington station, it was expected, the remains will be transferred to a train for Windsor, finally reaching St. George's chapel about noon, where a magnificent funeral service, it was expected, will take place.

Lord Pelham Clinton authorized the statement that there will be no lying in state. However, there is good reason to believe that many persons will be afforded the privilege of seeing their dead queen as she lies in the gorgeously transformed dining room, where she will remain until Feb. 1. In the hope that this may be the case the people are already pouring into Cowes.

Yesterday King Edward replied to thousands of messages he has received. To those from rulers and great personages he replied in person. To those from minor dignitaries he commended his querry to return thanks. A particularly grateful message went to President McKinley.

The new queen moved ceaselessly around, seeing that everything should be done in order. She refused to allow herself to be called queen. "Your majesty," said one of her entourage, "Your royal highness, you mean," was the immediate interruption.

THE EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

16TH YEAR. NO. 193.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1901.

TWO CENTS

Oleomargine Case Has Been Dismissed.

Jury Was Out Until 12:30 O'clock Last Night When It Returned

A Verdict In Favor of Kratz

Professor Hobbs, of Western Reserve University Gave Some Expert Testimony.

Artificial Coloring Used In Butter.

The hearing in the oleomargine case against Harry Kratz was concluded last evening. The suit was brought in the court of Justice McLane, and the testimony was all in about 4:25.

Attorneys Steele and Fawcett stated the case plainly to the jury, after which Martin Cohen, the prosecuting witness, and Prof. Hobbs, the chemical expert of the Western Reserve Medical Institute, were sworn for the state and were examined by Judge Fawcett.

Cohen was called and stated that he was an inspector in the employ of the State Dairy and Food Commissioner. He said:

"On December 10 I bought one pound of oleomargarine from Harry Kratz. On this occasion I said, 'Do you remember me,' and Kratz said that he did."

This ended the direct testimony of the witness and Attorney Steele took him.

He brought out the fact that Cohen had visited Oppelt's store some time in July of last year and attempted to purchase some oleomargarine, but Kratz told him they were not selling oleomargarine that day, and Cohen asked him if they were giving it away, to which the clerk replied that they were.

Cohen then asked for 50 pounds of the stuff and it was delivered to him.

Fawcett objected to the reference to this visit in July, but Steele insisted that he wanted to show how Kratz came to know Cohen as a state official. The squire overruled the objection, and in answer to a question of Attorney Steele the witness said he had asked for 50 pounds in order to "stall" the clerk, as he didn't think he would give it to him.

Steele asked the witness why he did not return all but a pound of the oleomargarine after the clerk had given him 50 pounds and he replied that it was a matter of pride with him. He said he had considerable difficulty in carrying the oleomargarine away with him and shortly after he left the store he met Willis Nichols, an old acquaintance of his, and gave the stuff to him, and at the present time he did not know where it was.

He also said that he had never stated that he had it in for the merchants of this city.

Fawcett objected to the question, stating that it was not competent, but Steele stated that he proposed to impeach the witness by proving by Frank Kinsvatter and Frank Rayl that witness had made such a remark in their presence.

The question was allowed and defendant's attorney noted an exception.

The witness further testified that the sample purchased at Oppelt's on December 10 was taken to Cleveland and delivered into the hands of Prof.

Hobbs on December 12. He said he had labelled the package in the presence of the employees of the grocery with the label provided by the state for that purpose, pasting it over the string with which the package was tied.

The package alleged to have been bought at Oppelt's was here produced and showed that the string was on top of the label.

Steele then asked the witness if it was not customary for inspectors to seal in a glass jar in the presence of defendant before sending same to the chemist.

Witness replied that to the best of his knowledge it was not done. In reply to a question as to why he did not send the 50 pounds secured in July to the chemist, Cohen stated that he had consulted a local attorney who told him he had no case, and his pride would not permit him to return the stuff to its owner.

Attorney Fawcett asked witness if any change had been made in the package after he had got it and he stated that he had delivered it to Prof. Hobbs just as he had prepared it at Oppelt's store.

Steele then asked him if he was not employed by Dairy and Food Commissioner Blackburn as an inspector, and he replied that he was. He said he had no commission, no term of office and nothing to show that he was an employe of the state of Ohio and could be dismissed by Commissioner Blackburn at any time.

This closed Cohen's testimony and Prof. Hobbs was called and examined by Attorney Fawcett.

He said he was a chemist at the Western Reserve Medical University and also chemist for the State Dairy and Food Department, which position he had held for many years. He said he had made numerous examinations of oleomargarine. He identified the package upon the table as that brought to him by Inspector Cohen on December 12, the label was identical, and had no reason to think that it was not the same package. He said his analysis of the package showed that it contained 11 2-10 per cent of butter fats, together with a yellow coloring matter foreign to the usual methods in the manufacture of oleomargarine. He said the oleomargarine package given him contained 20 per cent of oleo oil, 25 per cent neutral oil, 20 per cent cream, 15 per cent milk, 10 per cent solid, 10 per cent salt and water.

The witness here launched into a detailed expert analysis of oleomargarine and butters in general. He consumed 45 minutes in his expert testimony.

The witness then stated that he could tell by the amount of butyric acid in the butter fats, after the salt, crud and water had been eliminated, that it did not contain a sufficient amount of pure butter fat to be up to the standard.

Attorney Fawcett asked what per cent of pure butter should be in a pound, to which witness replied 80 per cent, and that the sample had contained but 11 1-10 per cent. Witness then stated that the coloring had been put in to make it resemble pure butter sold in the market. He stated that most butter is colored, as the original color of the food is almost pure white, so is oleomargarine.

Steele then took the witness and made him repeat the statement that most of the butter sold on the market was colored by artificial means just the same as oleomargarine.

The state rested their case and an adjournment of five minutes was taken and after court had reconvened Harry Kratz was called for the defense and examined by Attorney Steele.

He testified that he was born in 1881 and was employed by Edwin Oppelt as a grocery clerk. He said he knew the prosecuting witness by having seen him in the store and knew that he was an inspector, as Cohen had told him. On December 10, as near as he could recollect, he sold Cohen a pound of oleo for analysis. He met Cohen on an occasion, he thought in July, on which occasion Cohen told him he was an inspector. Attorney Steele here asked the witness if in the presence of he and two other clerks Cohen had not stated that he had it in for the merchants of East Liverpool. The attorney for the prosecution objected to the question, stating that the question was irrelevant, that the prosecution was there to prove that a violation of the law had taken place, and the fact that whether Cohen had it in for them had nothing to do with the case.

The court sustained the objection, and as this would prevent both Rayl and Kinsvatter from testifying, the defense rested.

Attorney Steele asked that the wrapper around the oleomargarine bought at Oppelt's store be submitted. He gave as his reason for this that it contained the label placed there by the inspector and also the result of the analysis. This was agreed to by the state, and the testimony ended.

There was some discussion in regard to the arguments, as Judge Fawcett desired to return to Canton last night. He stated that he would be willing to limit the arguments on each side to half an hour. Steele objected, as he said they desired to present their case fully to the jury.

The court ruled that the case should take its regular course, and the arguments were proceeded with.

At 5:30 an adjournment was taken for supper and reconvened at 7 o'clock, at which time the arguments were completed and the case went to the jury shortly before 9 o'clock.

The jury was out until 12:30, when it returned a verdict in favor of Kratz, acquitting him of the charge.

When the first ballot was taken there were four for conviction and after a few more ballots one party voted for acquittal, but the remaining three voted for conviction until the last ballot was taken.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The Services Held Last Evening Were Unusually Well Attended.

There was a very large congregation at the First M. E. church last night, and Evangelist Smith preached a strong sermon. A number of persons in the audience asked for prayers. The altar service was very inspiring. Services will be held tonight at the usual hour.

ONE POOR COMMON DRUNK ARRESTED

McDade Filled Up On Bad Whisky and Then Tried to Get In

S. J. FAULK'S RESIDENCE

He Was Ordered to Leave but Could Not See It That Way.

WAS ASSESSED $2 AND COSTS

Last evening a drunken man appeared at the home of S. J. Faulk, at the foot of Washington street, and insisted that he be left in the house. Mr. Faulk went to the door and the stranger tried to shove past him, but was foiled in his attempt. He was told to leave, but failed to do so and kept pounding on the door, much to the annoyance of Mr. Faulk.

He was repeatedly warned to leave, but failed to do so and the police were sent for. Officers Davidson and Dawson responded and the man was taken to the city jail.

He gave his name as J. V. McDade and this morning when he faced the mayor he pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was fined $2 and costs. He is now in jail waiting for friends to appear and pay his fine.

A BOX OF ORANGES.

Councilman Peach Sent a Very Delicious Lot of Fruit to President Marshall.

When Councilman George Peach went south a few days ago he promised to send President Marshall a box of oranges.

Yesterday they arrived in a box about three inches square and contained two dozen very small delicious specimens, which were distributed among the various councilmen and city officials.

RESIDENTS

Of the County Will Ask That the 50-Year Franchise Be Granted.

The promoters of the proposed East Liverpool and Salem Electric railway have petitioned the county commissioners for a 50-year franchise, and it is probable the residents in all parts of the county will ask that the franchise be granted, as they realize that the cost of building the road would be too great to have the capitalists accept a 25-year franchise.

A FIELD DAY.

The High School Athletic Association Will Hold One at the End of the Term.

The East Liverpool Athletic association met last evening and wound up their business for the year. The following officers were then elected:

Manager—William B. Louthan.

Treasurer—William Cripps.

At the end of the school term a field day will be held.

A Salem Bankrupt.

Job Evans, a Salem coal dealer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court. The assets are $2,000, while the liabilities are $3,000.

The Kind of Husband I Should Choose For My Daughter.

Copyright, 1901, The Christian Herald.

A Christian Every Day in the Year.
By Mrs. Francis E. Clark.

Is it not a difficult question to ask of one who is spending the greater part of her time in training up future husbands for other people's daughters?

As a preliminary step I sent word to half a dozen college girls of my acquaintance, to know what kinds of husbands they would choose, and with one voice they assured me that they did not want any husbands. That put a summary stop to my investigations in that direction, and quite took my breath away. But I do not believe a word of it. I next appealed to my own mother to see what kind of a husband she would have chosen for me.

"My sister," she said, "was once asked, 'If you were required to choose between a Christian man with a quick, bad temper, and a man who made no pretensions of religion, but who was equal in intelligence, position and culture to the other, and whose disposition was known to be amiable, which would you choose? Not a fair question you say. So thought my sister; but when pressed for answer she replied: 'I would marry neither of them unless I loved him beyond everybody else in the world. In that case I think I should want to help the Christian to overcome his hot temper. If I were to choose the pleasant, winsome, irreligious man, I should, by violating my own religious convictions and training, show him so inconsistent a Christian character myself, that I could hardly hope to draw him to my Savior, and I should very likely lose my own warmth and zeal in Christian duty.' Shall I decide then that, first of all, my daughter's choice should be, or mine for her, a truly Christian man, one whose life and talents and property, if he has any, are consecrated to his Master. He must not be morose or quick-tempered, or selfish. He must be well educated, warm-hearted, sympathetic and amiable. He should honor his Master by a cheerful face."

Certainly then the man I would choose for my daughter (if I were so fortunate as to have a daughter) must first of all be a Christian, and he must not be one of the kind of whom a little boy said, "Yes, he is a Christian, but he is not working at it much." Nor must he be like that woman to whom her little daughter said, "Mamma, I found your religion in your trunk," meaning her church letter. The man I would choose must be an earnest Christian, the kind of a man who would be "working at it," and the kind of a man who would not "keep his religion in his trunk." If he moved to another town he would be the kind of a man who would be likely to take a letter to that church, and for the time he lived there, would throw in his lot with that church, and help to carry its burdens. If he traveled, he would carry his religion with him.

Shall he be rich? No, I think I would rather not. I think I would choose to have him acquire the strength that comes from "enduring hardness," rather than meet the temptations that come with riches. Shall he then be poor? No, I do not think I choose that, for I want them to have at least one luxury, the luxury of giving, and it is so little that a very poor man can give, even if he gives a tenth. I think I would pray Agur's prayer for him: "Give him neither poverty nor riches."

Shall he be handsome? Why yes, if I can choose he shall be "of a beautiful countenance and goodly to look to," and tall; but remember that does not come first. I have chosen first of all that he shall be an earnest Christian, and if he is that, the good looks will not hurt him, and he will certainly be more pleasing, and will have so much more power to influence others.

What shall his business be? Well, if I were to choose it for him, I think I would rather he would be a missionary or a minister, that his whole life might be spent in helping other lives, like the parson in Jean Ingelow's poem, "so anxious not to go to heaven alone." But since he is to be an earnest Christian man, I think I would rather he would choose his own calling, feeling that he would help other lives whatever his daily work may be.

Should Respect His Wife's Mother.
By Marietta Holley (Aunt Samantha.)

It seems to me that the first quality a mother would desire in the man who was to marry her daughter is goodness; since wealth takes wings and knowledge casts a rather cold light on the hearthstone when shining there alone. But the man who will be good to his wife in sunshine and shade, in youth and age, is the one likeliest to make her happy.

She would demand good habits in the one who vowed to comfort and protect her daughter, lest the protector should change into a danger, the comforter into a disgrace. She would like to have him a man who would sometimes give a kindly thought to the woman who toiled early and late to make the sweet wife he loves and admires what she is. And who patiently stepped down and out of the heart and life where she had reigned supreme, leaving him first and dearest. And she would greatly prefer that he should refrain from making the mother-in-law joke. But if she be a sensible woman she will not insist upon this, but quietly efface herself as much as possible, remembering that this has been the mother's lot since first the sons of God looked upon the daughters of men and saw that they were exceedingly and wonderfully fair.

And if she can bring herself to love the intruder, as so many have, and receive a loyal affection in return, why so much the better, the inevitable then becomes endurable. He should have courage, for there will be many lions to pass on the wedded journey and he will be weighted down by the burden of love, the care of one dearer to himself, for this the mother imperatively demands that he must love her daughter, she must be to him the one woman in the world, for love's torch is the brightest light upon earth to light the wedded pair.

He must have patience in abundance, as he will marry a woman and not a saint. And, above all, he should be a Christian, so he will know where to get help and comfort and joy, and discern through the deepest shadows the great light that gilds his road, and can help her onward and upward.

He should be industrious, and have enough of this world's goods to ensure his wife's comfort and prevent her hearing the baying of the wolf at her door, but not rich necessarily, as the woman who marries for riches alone confronts the dire possibility of the riches flying away and nothing but the man remaining when all that made him attractive and worthy of affection is gone.

He should be passably good looking, since it would be pleasanter to look across the coffee urn three hundred mornings in the year and behold a comely visage. He must have good sense, but not be too brilliant, as a meteor would not give as good satisfaction for household needs as a more mellow and steadier light.

Polite, Patient, Confident and Loving.
By Margaret E. Sangster.

If I had a daughter in the sweet bloom of her years, when a husband might loom up on the horizon, far would it be from me to choose for her in a matter of such personal importance. Yet I might give advice, and I hope I would do it tactfully, for much pre-matrimonial counsel defeats its own ends, confirms hesitation, and absolutely sends girls and men the opposite way from which the counsellor warned them.

Only on a solid foundation of true love and real respect can she or can he hope to build an edifice which will last. They must choose for themselves.

I would like to see my daughter marry a man whose mother had early trained him in unselfishness at home. I would prefer a man who had as a boy lived with sisters, two older, and three younger perhaps, and waited on them all, and who had been their escort, companion and friend.

The most charming man in the whole world is the man who appreciates a woman's need of small courtesies, who never in any circumstances finds fault or interferes in what is beyond his province, who keeps to his own side of the line in home management, and does not prowl around where he is not wanted. A polite, considerate, patient gentleman makes an ideal everyday sort of a husband.

If my daughter is wise she will not pin her faith to a man who has no reverence for God, nor belief in the Heavenly Father. A man who has no definite religious principles, no convictions, who is disposed to ignore the claims of the church and of the Savior, may be otherwise amiable, but he will not have ballast enough for the crisis of life. A profane or intemperate man should be avoided by the girl who is asked to put herself in the keeping of another. A man should be of knightly purity and stainless honor when he seeks the hand of pure maiden.

PAYS ITS RESPECTS

TO PARTIES WHO ONCE RESIDED IN THIS CITY.

The Roller Monthly, of Canton, Makes a Few Uncomplimentary Remarks.

The Roller Monthly, a magazine of Canton, pays its respects to some parties who used to reside here in the following uncomplimentary manner:

In a recent number of "Newspaperdom," a writer from this city, whose signature testifies that he is connected with the business management of the News-Democrat, stated that Canton was in sore need of a writer of advertisements for local business men, and advised some experienced young man to locate here and establish himself in that business. This writer, like the majority of the force of that paper, is himself an importation, and, with the others, ridicules and sneers at local journalism, and is making an attempt to show the old residents "how to run a city newspaper." He prefers to have a stranger locate here and secure work, rather than it should be given to a Cantonian. There are a number of bright young men connected with the newspapers and printing offices in this city who have the ability to become satisfactory "ad. writers," if there was a demand for their services, and, in fact, several of the leading business houses of the city do now employ an expert to write their advertising matter for them. The truth of the matter is that the majority of Canton merchants think that money paid for the writing of an ad. is money as good as wasted.

Another truth is that to produce good advertising matter for a diversity of businesses, would occasion considerable study by the writer as well as expense in procuring proper books, magazines and papers relative thereto. Some advertising matter may be written off-hand in a few moments, while others may take hours if not days to produce. How many advertisers in a city like Canton would pay the ad. writer $3 for an ad. that took him half a day to produce; or $1 for one that took an hour or more of his time? Some years ago, the writer issued a circular to the business men of Canton and vicinity, offering his services to assist in writing their advertising matter, and to supply them with clippings of ads, etc., from out-of-papers, in their especial line of business, etc., etc. He spent several dollars for postage stamps and mailed the circulars in sealed envelopes to the most prominent advertisers and business men in Canton and elsewhere. He states another truth when he says that long, long since, he ceased looking for his first reply to that circular letter. Most of the Canton advertisements of today are reproduced (excepting the firm name, prices, etc.) from such journals, as the Advertising World, Printers' Ink, the Ad. Writer, etc. No, I don't believe I would advise any one to take the News-Democrat man's advice and try to make a living in this city by the means of "ad. writing."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1901.

COUNTY TREASURER.

Have you any definite, well developed knowledge as to where we can secure an individual who could be prevailed upon to accept this berth? Applications will be placed on file.

LEGISLATION.

With two representatives to elect, there promises to be a lively time for a place in the race at the coming Republican primaries. Keep your eyes on the candidates. There is the promise of a warm contest. Can you pick the winners?

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

A little chat with Mr. Healy, of the light company, develops the fact that he is determined that East Liverpool shall have a first-class lighting or illuminating system, and we believe that Mr. H. means just that which he says. We await developments.

COMMISSIONER.

When Commissioner French retires from the berth which he has filled so acceptably to his constituents, can you give us a hint as to the individual who will succeed him? We are thinking of forming a "guessing bee," and we may offer a prize for the successful buzzer.

CHESTER.

Our little neighbor across the river has a case within its borders that may yet develop into very serious trouble for a resident of that community. If the story be true, the offender against the law should rest in the penitentiary for the remainder of his life, and then count himself lucky. We await developments.

ABOMINABLE.

The journalist who would indulge in a miserable pun over the death of the lamented Christie, and then find amusement in writing a head announcing the death of the lamented Queen Victoria, has evidently mistaken his calling, and he should take a few years off in order to cultivate a fund of common sense.

DON'T.

Don't do a mean and cowardly act. Don't lie, by word or deed. Don't be guilty of misrepresentation. Don't be a loafer. Don't be a trickster. Don't swindle and cheat any one; not even a candidate for office. Don't imagine that this big, round, busy, hustling globe will cease to revolve or do business when you pass in your checks. Don't be a professing Christian on Sunday, and a real boozier and gambler all the rest of the week. Don't pray that the heathen may be converted, and then rent your property for saloon purposes, or to the scarlet woman, simply because you can get fifty per cent more than you can from a decent individual or a business man who is engaged in a legitimate enterprise. Don't refuse to attempt to pay your honest debts. Don't build a nice little property, call it your own, and then defraud your grocer, butcher, shoemaker, washwoman, carpet dealer, clothier, etc., etc., and then add insult to injury by coolly informing your creditors that it keeps you busy in meeting your life insurance, your building and loan association dues, lodge dues, and an occasional trip to Atlantic City. Don't beat the poor printer; don't even think of doing it; give him a chance to invest his money in houses and lots—poorhouses and lots of libel suits and labels. Don't be a scheming rascal and you won't get caught. Don't.

SAFETY BRAKES.

The street car line on the Calcutta road has become a necessity. Either that avenue or an adjacent one must be made use of in order that rapid transit shall exist between the central or business part of East Liverpool and the splendid residence sites now on the market in the vicinity of the Grandview and Riverview plats of ground. From a health standpoint, these residence sites are unexceptional, resting as they do above the smoke, fog and malarial influences, while from the standpoint of beauty and superb landscape views, they cannot be equalled anywhere in all this section of country. This is not an advertisement, or mere claptrap and gush, at so much a line, but a statement of plain fact, as any lover of beauty will admit after a tour of inspection on a day of sunshine and health giving breezes. This being a fact, the next thing to do is to convince the public that the street car line on the Calcutta road is just as safe as is that through the heart of East Liverpool. Can this be demonstrated? We believe that it can. We have had two object lessons which have demonstrated that it must be done. The public will not be satisfied with anything less than a complete, thorough and practical test and demonstration along the line of perfect safety to passengers and crew of said street cars. Heavier grades than that of the Calcutta route have been mastered with ease at other points of our country, and the ascent and descent thereof have been rendered perfectly safe, the cars being under perfect control and accidents rendered next to an impossibility. That which has been accomplished elsewhere can be accomplished here. The men in charge in this city are not to be overcome or conquered by trifles. "Necessity is the mother of invention." The necessity now exists respecting this special feature. The inventive genius will be on hand in due time, and that time is not far distant. We predict that all existing difficulties will vanish within the next few weeks, and that the East Liverpool public will express its wonder that the ascent and descent of the Calcutta road, by means of an electrical street car line, was ever even momentarily considered an unsafe or dangerous venture. Turn on the power.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Council met at Columbian park at 1 o'clock today.

A. G. Minehart is ill at his home on Franklin street.

Tom Pickal is ill at his home on Fourth street with an attack of lumbago.

Council met on Kossuth street yesterday afternoon and talked assessments.

Miss Nellie Cannon, of Sixth street, has returned home after a visit with friends in Steubenville.

W. P. Gardner left this afternoon for Florida, where he will spend the balance of the winter.

Eugene Bradshaw, of the Bradshaw Pottery company of Rogers, was in the city today on business.

The township trustees experienced a slight increase in business today. The cold weather did it.

George C. Thompson and wife will leave in a few days for Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Kenneth, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bulger, of Sixth street, is ill with an attack of chicken pox.

George H. Owen has sold the property of Henry Peterson, Elm street, to Lydia T. Vernon; consideration $1,700.

The revival services held last evening in the Methodist Protestant church were largely attended and much good was accomplished.

Mrs. Delaney is slowly improving, and it is thought she will be well enough tomorrow to be taken to the home of relatives in New Jersey.

An infant son of Michael McGinnis died at the home of its parents on Sixth street Wednesday. The remains were laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery yesterday.

Suit has been entered in the court of Justice Rose by Philip Smith against David M. McLane to recover on a promissory note for $50 with interest. The case is set for trial on Monday, January 28, at 8 a. m.

The vested choir of St. Stephen's church will meet this evening in the church at 7:30 o'clock to rehearse special music for the memorial service to be held on Sunday afternoon. All members are requested to be present.

The case of Inspector Martin Cohen versus Albert Geon for selling a certain brand of maple syrup which is not up to the weight required by law, was up in the court of Justice McLane this afternoon, and owing to the absence of any of the parties who handle the stuff and are back of the local grocer, the hearing was continued until next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The local merchants purchased the syrup from a jobbing firm of Wheeling, who in turn bought it from the firm which manufactures it in Vermont. The stuff is bottled when sent out from the manufacturing concern, so that the Vermont people will have to bear the brunt, and it will be necessary to have that firm represented at the hearing. Mr. Cohen stated this morning that he had profited by the experience of yesterday and would try no more cases here. In case the defendant in this affair concludes to stand trial it will be taken to Lisbon.

HE GOT DRUNK

And His Work Was Delayed Until He Embraced Sobriety.

As per the history in such cases he is a first-class workman, and on this account was engaged to do a piece of work requiring artistic skill. His patron was anxious that the said work should be completed speedily in order that business might be facilitated. The sober man directed his ground work and then deemed it necessary to get his spirits up by pouring spirits down. His employer became impatient for his return from the rum hell that he had visited, and was finally compelled to close his establishment and proceed to business interests elsewhere. Later on he called the attention of the wife of the aforesaid artist to neglect on the part of the partner of her joys and sorrows and requested to know when he would bodily materialize. The answer sounded back that her hubby was "rum rum," and unfit for duty, that he would report later on, which the said artist finally did, fessed up fully, apologized and requested that he might be permitted to finish the job. permission was given on account of the fact that he was a genuine artist and a good fellow when sober. This incident is merely given to show the power of the rum devil to destroy the life and happiness of otherwise competent and skilled workmen who might be an ornament to society and a helper and sustainer to the home circle, and this incident occurred in East Liverpool. Why not kill the rum devil?

EVENTS IN BRIEF.

SOUTH SIDE.

Broke the Dog's Leg.

Leander Woodmansee, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Woodmansee, yesterday broke the leg of a small pet dog, and for a time it was thought the animal would have to be shot.

It was finally decided to make an attempt to have the fracture reduced, and with that end in view the canine was taken to a physician stopping at the Chester hotel. Some plaster was obtained from one of the potteries and after splints had been put upon the injured member, it was encased in the plaster.

The dog is doing well today, and it is thought if the proper care is taken of the animal it will get well.

Not Meeting With Success.

The projectors of the proposed glass plant for Chester are not meeting with the success they expected.

Up to the present not more than $25,000 has been subscribed, and the bulk of that has been taken by South-side people. As the original intention was to capitalize the concern at $50,000, it will be seen some tall hustling must be done in order to raise the necessary amount.

A Peculiar Affliction.

A. J. Van Dyne is just at present suffering from a very peculiar affliction.

The gentleman is engineer at the Burgess stilt works, and a few days ago discovered a small pimple on his right hand between the thumb and first finger. He removed the top of the cuticle, and in a very short time he had a very sore hand. The sore was very painful and it was not long until evidences of blood poisoning were manifested. Mr. Van Dyne is now treating the injury for that disease.

Southside Notes.

Motorman George Wynn is off duty owing to illness. His place is being filled by John Cunningham.

H. V. Dague, of Pittsburg, is a Chester business visitor today.

Suffered a Relapse.

Harry Stewart is confined to his home by illness. The young man had been suffering from grip for several days, and yesterday suffered a relapse.

Plenty of Grip.

There is a great deal of sickness in Chester just now, the prevailing disease being grip.

EAST END.

RIVER ROAD.

THE RESIDENTS OF EAST END
HAVE A KICK.

Law Requires That Street Railway
Company Shall Plank the Crossings.

The people of East End and vicinity who use the river road and make trips to the city proper each day, have a large sized kick on the condition of that thoroughfare with reference to plank crossings along the street railway.

The law required that the council shall make this a part of the conditions governing the road when the franchise was granted, and the claim is made that this has never been required of the East Liverpool company, and that there has never been a single plank used at any of the numerous points between East End and the city when they are compelled to cross the railroad.

There are about eight crossings along the river road and a great deal of injury is done to the vehicles that are jolted across the tracks many times a day.

The various owners of teams in the upper part of town have complained to the commissioner, whose duty it is to look after the matter, but state that no attention whatever has been paid to the request.

They now propose to circulate a petition which will be presented to council asking that the proper parties be required to make the crossings passable, and in case of a refusal, impeachment proceedings will be instituted.

The agitation has now reached a point where it will not down, and since the parties interested are positive they have the law on their side, will leave no stone unturned that will bring about the end sought.

IMPORTANT MEETING

OF STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEES
TO BE HELD.

The Session Will Take Place at Brotherhood Hall on the Morning of January 26.

At 1 o'clock on the morning of January 26 will be held one of the most important meetings in the history of local assembly No. 52, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees.

Brotherhood hall has been secured for the occasion and a large number of new members will be taken into the organization. An effort is being made to have all the new men on both lines receive the obligation on this occasion, but it cannot be told as yet whether this can be accomplished, as the number will reach something over 50.

Since the conductors were added to the East Liverpool line the working force of this road has been more than doubled, and in consequence some 34 new men are now regularly employed who are not members of the union, and it is expected they will be initiated on the occasion of this meeting.

In addition to these there are eight extra motormen and eight conductors who are eligible. The Rock Springs line has been breaking in a number of new men, and they will also be initiated. So if the plans now formed do not miscarry, a rousing meeting will be held and the officers will have their hands full for several hours.

East End Notes.

John Forbes is improving his property in East End by an addition to his barn.

Robert Shaw is ill at his home on St. George street.

Another case of diphtheria has developed in the upper part of town.

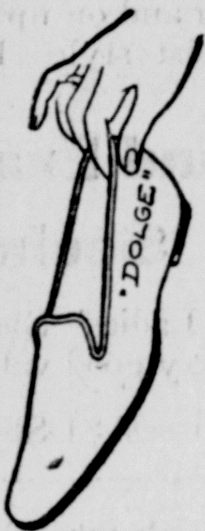

A little child of Mr. and Mrs. William Andrews, First avenue, is suffering from convulsions.

OUR Closing Out Sale Continues.

As our days are few in East Liverpool, we invite all to come and secure bargains while you have this opportunity.

I am fully satisfied that the people know they are getting good bargains, from the amount of goods we have sold in the last three weeks.

FRAZIER'S

Shoe Parlor,

167 Fifth Street.

Georgia Conkle, of Mulberry street, is suffering from an attack of congestion of the lungs.

Rev. N. M. Crowe, Pennsylvania avenue, who has been ill for several days, is improving slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Van Fossen are recovering from their recent illness.

Miss Mary Madison will leave next Monday for her home in Salineville, where she will visit friends.

VAST SUM FOR THE NAVY.

Cannon Referred to Great Total. If New Ships Desired Are Authorized.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house continued consideration of the naval appropriation bill and practically almost completed it before adjournment.

Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee, in a statement, asserted that when the ships now authorized and those desired to be authorized had been completed, if they are, about $320,000,000 would have been spent upon the new navy, and that in his opinion the time to stop will then have arrived.

An amendment offered by Mr. Rixey, of Virginia, a Democratic member of the naval committee, to strike out the provision in the bill for two battleships and two cruisers, was defeated, 46 to 90.

ADD HOUSE
The senate devoted some time to the Indian appropriation bill, and made only fair progress. The chief feature of the debate was a sharp attack by Mr. Pettigrew, on the Dawes commission, which, he said, was extravagant and was accomplishing little in the way of results. An interesting announcement made by him was that he did not purpose to filibuster against the bill.

The senate adopted the Pettigrew resolution asking the war department for information concerning the reported deportation of A. Mabini, a citizen of the Philippines, to Guam.

King Charles to Attend Funeral.

Lisbon, Jan. 25.—King Charles, it was expected, will leave on Saturday for London to attend the funeral of Queen Victoria.

MACARTHUR WAS BADLY HAZED.
An Ex-Cadet, His Former Tentmate, So Testified.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The committee which was investigating the hazing of Cadet Booz had before it F. H. Cunningham, a teacher at the Hamilton Institute, New York city, who formerly was a cadet at West Point. He was the tent mate of Cadet MacArthur, a son of General MacArthur. Mr. Cunningham entered the academy in June, 1898. He testified that his tent mate was MacArthur. He described the hazing of MacArthur in July, 1898. He said he reeled into the tent after being hazed and went into convulsions. He was writhing and moaning so that he (Cunningham) covered him with a blanket to prevent his moans from being heard by the officer of the day. MacArthur's inquisitors after the hazing, he said, were very much exercised over what they had done and were anxious to see him restored. Barry, one of them, brought water to restore him. Asked as to what was done to MacArthur, Cunningham replied that they had done everything which came under the head of "exercising."

ONE MAN KILLED.

Fatal Accident In a Blast Furnace at Bellaire, O.—Others Received Injuries.

Wheeling, Jan. 25.—A distressing accident occurred at the blast furnaces of the Bellaire (O.) Steel works, by which one workman was killed instantly and four others seriously injured. The men were at their usual work when there was a sudden explosion of hot metal, which burst forth with the fury of a veritable Vesuvius.

Thomas Murphy was instantly killed, being burned to a crisp within a minute. Harry Thomas, the manager of the furnace, was badly burned, as were Chester Lowe, Jacob Hore and Blaine Redman, furnacemen. Lowe is the worst injured and may die.

Thanked For Symphy Resolution.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—In the reichstag the president (Count von Ballestrom) read a telegram from Emperor William containing sincere thanks for the house's resolution of sympathy on the death of his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

KING RETURNED TO OSBORNE.

Proclaimed King In London According to Ancient Rites—Quaint Ceremonies Followed the Precedents of Medieval Times. A Strange Spectacle Presented by the Officials of the College of Arms—The Proclamation Read at Different Quarters—King Replied to McKinley.

London, Jan. 25.—An extraordinary Gazette publishes an order in council—"That it is expected that all persons upon the present occasion, the death of her late majesty of blessed and glorious memory, put themselves into deepest mourning."

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 25.—So hampered have been the arrangements at Osborne that the body of Queen Victoria still lay last night in the bed room where she died. The elaborate decorations necessary in turning the dining room in Osborne house into a chapel ardente occupied so much time that although the royal household waited hour after hour for the first private service, it was found impossible to hold this yesterday.

Services May Occur Today.

All being well, however, the solemn function may be performed this morning by the bishop of Winchester, in the presence of King Edward, Emperor William and almost every other member of the royal family.

The coffin was brought to Osborne last evening and was taken through the queen's private gate, which had not been previously used since her death. Emperor William was the first person to see it. The coffin body will be transferred to the dining room, now hung with deep purple. The dais is wreathed with the royal standard, and on each side are great candles. Madonnas by famous painters hang from the draped walls. In one corner magnificent wreaths from all parts of the world crush their blossoms one against the other. Among these the most beautiful are from Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria. Around the coffin chairs are arranged for the royal mourners.

London, Jan. 25.—It was understood the body of Queen Victoria will arrive in London on the morning of Feb. 2 and be taken across the metropolis to Paddington. Troops will line the streets. The coffin will be placed on a gun carriage and draped with flags. On arriving at Paddington station, it was expected, the remains will be transferred to a train for Windsor, finally reaching St. George's chapel about noon, where a magnificent funeral service, it was expected, will take place.

Lord Pelham Clinton authorized the statement that there will be no lying in state. However, there is good reason to believe that many persons will be afforded the privilege of seeing their dead queen as she lies in the gorgeously transformed dining room, where she will remain until Feb. 1. In the hope that this may be the case the people are already pouring into Cowes.

Yesterday King Edward replied to thousands of messages he has received. To those from rulers and great personages he replied in person. To those from minor dignitaries he commanded his equerry to return thanks. A particularly grateful message went to President McKinley.

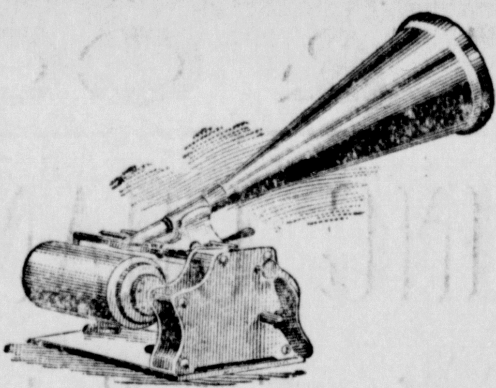

The new queen moved ceaselessly around, seeing that everything should be done in order. She refused to allow herself to be called queen. "Your majesty," said one of her entourage, "Your royal highness, your mean," was the immediate interruption.

It was chiefly due to Queen Alexandra's desire to design carefully the minutest detail of the death chapel that the first funeral service was not held yesterday.

King Returned to Osborne.

Cowes, Jan. 25.—An expectant crowd lined Trinity pier Thursday, as the royal yacht Alberta, with King Edward on board, turned the point, and the first gun of the royal salute thundered from the British warship Australia. All the flags hitherto half masted were hauled down, marking the suspension of mourning till the king landed. The depressing surroundings were somewhat lightened by the presence of the naval and military staffs in brilliant uniforms.

The king landed about 2:45 p. m. In acknowledgment of the silent greetings of the people he frequently raised his hat. He came ashore with the Duke of Connaught and drove to Osborne house, where Emperor William met him at the gates and warmly greeted him.

Immediately after the king landed the flags were again half masted.

London, Jan. 25.—The quaint ceremonies with which King Edward VII was proclaimed at various points of the metropolis Thursday followed ancient precedents. The officials purposely arranged the function about an hour ahead of the published announcement, and some of the inhabitants, when they awoke, were surprised to find the way between St. James palace and the city lined with troops. About 10,000 soldiers, life guards, horse guards, foot guards and other cavalry and infantry regiments had been brought from Aldershot and London barracks after midnight. All the officers had craped on their arms and the drums and brass instruments were shrouded with crape. The troops, in themselves, made an imposing spectacle, but they were entirely eclipsed by the strange spectacle presented by the officials of the college of arms.

A blare of trumpets announced the progress of the cavalcade as it proceeded through Trafalgar square and the Strand.

The ceremony began at St. James palace, where, about 9 o'clock a. m., Edward VII was proclaimed king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. The king was not present. The proclamation, which was read by William Henry Weldon, king-at-arms since 1894, and formerly Windsor herald, was as follows:

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to call to his mercy our late sovereign, Lady Queen Victoria, of blessed and glorious memory, by whose decease the imperial crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward, we, therefore, the lords spiritual and temporal of this realm, being here assisted with those of her late majesty's privy council, with numbers of other principal gentlemen of quality, the lord mayor, aldermen and citizens of London, do now hereby, with one voice, consent of tongue and heart to publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward is now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, become our only lawful and rightful Hege lord, Edward VII, by the grace of God king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith, Emperor of India, to whom we acknowledge all faith and constant obedience with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom all kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince Edward VII with long and happy years to reign over us."

London, Jan. 25.—It was understood that the progress of the body of Queen Victoria through London will be an imposing military pageant and that members of the houses of lords and commons will be invited to follow the procession. There seemed to be some apprehension lest a change of decision should omit the London portion of the program. The Daily Telegraph editorially claimed for London a right to share in the obsequies, and declared that nothing but the deceased's own wishes should prevent this.

The funeral has been delayed to enable all the foreign representatives to arrive at Windsor in time. It is announced that Grand Duke Sergius and the Grand Duchess will come from Russia to be present at the ceremony.

The procession, joined by the Herald, in which rode the lord mayor and others, moved through the streets, announcing the proclamation at different points.

COST OF BECOMING AN ENGLISH DOCTOR.

Cost of Becoming an English Doctor.

According to the British Medical Journal, the cost to qualify for a doctor is between £700 and £1,200, says the London Telegraph. The calculation works out as follows:

"Most of the London hospital schools arrange that by paying a composition fee of from a little over £100 to £150, either in one sum or by instalments, the student becomes a perpetual student, and is entitled to attend all necessary lectures and hospitals for the double diploma. As cheapness here cannot be considered a special recommendation, we take the larger sum for the purpose of our estimate, and adding to the necessary expenses for maintenance, clothing, books, anatomical parts, etc., at £100 a year for five years—a rather low estimate for London—we find that the total cost of an ordinary student at a London hospital who qualifies at the Conjoint board would be from £650 to £700; that of a university graduate would necessarily be greater, and might amount to £1,000. Of course, there is always the possibility in either case that rejections at intermediate examinations may prolong the period of studentship by an additional six months or a year, or may even render coaching necessary, and so add to the cost."

Not the most frugal could find much to cavil at on the score of extravagance. The main interest of the question, however, centers in the possibility—not to say probability—of paterfamilias having half a dozen sons all wishing to embrace a liberal profession.
